Nationalizing Railroads May Become Necessary, Volpe Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transportation Secretary John Volpe has told Congress the government might be forced to nationalize the country's railroads if federal aid is withheld from the Penn Central and other lines.

"If we do nothing, and all else fails, we only have the option of takeover of the railroads by the federal government," Volpe said Wednesday while testifying in support of a proposal to provide $750 million in emergency aid for the railways.

He told the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee that the Penn Central, which has filed a petition for reorganization under the bankruptcy laws, was badly managed and any government aid would be made at high risk. But changes of the firm, the nation's sixth largest corporation recovering without federal help is a gamble at best he said.

In Chicago, meanwhile, Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy told the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations the government should have made a "desperate" effort to save the railroad. But he said insufficient time was available to solve the firm's problems. He said other companies might face similar problems because "corporations operate with less cash than they used to."

Reluctant Response

Committee response to the proposal was reluctant and sometimes angry.

Rep. James Harvey, R-Mich., questioned the aid package on grounds it could set a precedent that would force the federal government to put financial "life nets" under other transportation industries.

Undersecretary Charles Baker said the airline and trucking industries were not in the same trouble as the railroads, but "the government does have the responsibility to see they remain operating."

Volpe said the Penn Central probably would receive the first $200 million of the administration's $750 million standby loan proposal.

The cash - stricken carrier would need that sum to stay in business for the remainder of the year, he said. The railroad reorganized under bankruptcy laws over the weekend after an original administration plan to guarantee a $200 million loan to the firm collapsed under adverse congressional reaction.

Penn Central's management came under strong criticism.

One committee member asked if $140,000 retirement pay for one board member was not excessive.

"Yes," Volpe said.

Rep. Brock Adams, D-Wash., asked whether management acted wisely last year in its decision to pay $43 million in dividends in the face of a financial crisis.

"No," said Volpe's deputy, James Beggs.

Management Rapped

Rep. J. J. Pickle, D-Tex., asked whether the Penn-Central was poorly managed.

"Anytime," Volpe said, "a corporation loses money I generally think it is poorly managed."

Adams, noting that he only looked at the matter briefly, said it was his impression "the investors have been getting their money out of the company while the company was starving for working capital."

Essential To Defense

Rep. Fred Rooney, D-Pa., said he would favor some sort of government takeover of rails. He called railroads "a monopoly whose only response to competition has been cutting service or raising rates."

Volpe said the railroads are essential for defense and the nation's economic health. To let the Penn Central cease operating would have dire effects on the whole economic system, he said, since 70 percent of all freight cars move over the company's rails at one time or another during a year.

Volpe added that during the next 10 years the nation's railroads would run up an estimated $12 billion deficit to make capital improvements.

Southern Blacks Taking Advantage Of Voting Act

By TED SIMMONS

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — In the five years of its existence, the Voting Rights Act of 1965 has helped Southern blacks fashion a political punch that is leaving an indelible mark on the politics and politicians of the area.

The act, hailed by then President Lyndon B. Johnson as a "triumph for freedom as huge as any victory on any battlefield," was recently extended for another five years by President Nixon.

Some Examples

Here are some examples of black political gains since the act was passed:

Nearly 1 million Negroes in the South have been added to voter registration rolls.

More than 400 blacks now hold elective office in the seven states affected—Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Virginia and 39 counties in North Carolina—as compared to a mere handful prior to passage of the act.

Seeks Governor's Post

And in each of these states Negroes are an increasing factor at the ballot box as a result of political awareness and activity.

In Georgia, a Negro asking whites to "join me in a new political emphasis" is running for governor for the first time in this century, and is conceded enough votes by the leading candidates to force a runoff in the Democratic primary in September.

The candidate, attorney C. B. King of Albany, is joined by blacks seeking such high offices as lieutenant governor and secretary of state.

In Alabama, a Negro civil rights lawyer this year became the first man of his race to win nomination to the legislature since Reconstruction.

In Virginia, blacks were elected to city councils for the first time in such racially conservative areas as Lynchburg, Emporia and Burkeville.

In North Carolina, where no Negro had offered for sheriff since Reconstruction, six ran this year in May primaries. All were defeated—but two took their white opponents into runoffs.

Forces Runoff

The increased power of the black vote in the South is attributed to a very large degree to the Voting Rights Act.

The 1965 bill abolished literacy tests in states where less than half the adult population was registered or voted in November 1964. It authorized the U.S. attorney general to dispatch federal voting examiners when and where he believed they were needed. And it provided criminal penalties for intimidating anyone trying to vote.

Legislation Halted

Many advocates call it the most meaningful civil rights legislation passed.

Opponents call it discriminatory, illegal and unconstitutional.

Black leaders, however, have a different criticism of the act. They contend that it is not strong enough and that it has not been sufficiently enforced.

Advocates of stronger enforcement claim that in the 556 counties in the seven states covered by the act, federal registrars have been sent into only 64. Some black leaders contend President Nixon is less than enthusiastic about enforcing civil rights.

Registration Aided

Although federal registrars have registered only about 158,000 Negroes, the act is credited with helping in the registration of almost one million, according to the Southern Regional Council's Voter Education Project, acknowledged to be the

Radical Predicts 'Bloodbath' On 4th

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Honor America Day gala scheduled for July 4th could turn into "America's most massive red-white-and-blue bloodbath," says a group headed by Chicago 7 defendant Rennie Davis.

"The demonstration is billed as nonpartisan and nonpolitical when in fact it is not," said the Emergency Committee to Prevent a July 4th Fist Fight.

The group said the event would amount to an unscheduled Republican convention and invite a violent confrontation with 15,000 young people Davis predicted would show up for a planned July 4th "Smoke-in" pot party on the grounds of the Washington Monument.

Davis and 15 others went to the Honor America Day headquarters Wednesday in an attempt to discuss the program, get themselves included on the committee and gain office space but were told no one in authority was present.

They said the current plans, calling for appearances by comedian Bob Hope and evangelist Billy Graham, offer nothing for young people and the city's majority Negro population.

In a statement, the group recommended the Honor America Day committee revise its program in an effort to make "the young and old, black and white. . .feel more at ease, and. . .prevent July 4th from becoming a national disaster."

Stop Shooting, Start Talks, Rogers Tells Mideast Foes

RESCUERS ARE hoisted to reach one of several workers trapped by hanging girder on the Maine-New Hampshire interstate high level auto bridge at Kittery, Maine. Four workers were killed in the accident. (AP Wirephoto)

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers announced today what he termed a major new U.S. Mideast peacs initiative aimed at getting the Arabs and Israelis "to stop shooting and start talking."

Broadly Worded Plan

The essence of the still-secret U.S. plan, it was understood, was a broadly worded proposal to Egypt, Jordan and Israel for a cease-fire of at least 90 days during which U.N. mediator Gunnar Jarring would start negotiations on the basis of these commitments by the opposing parties:

—Egypt and Jordan would pledge themselves to the principle of peace with Israel and acknowledge her right to exist within secure borders.

—Israel in return would pledge withdrawal from Arab lands she conquered in the 1967 war.

Won't Give Detail

Rogers announced the "major political initiative" at a news conference, but he refused to go into details of the new U.S. diplomatic effort. Nor would he say what the Nixon administration's decision is on Israel's plea for 125 modern jet war planes.

Rogers said because of the importance and sensitive nature of the behind-the-scenes approach to the Middle East opponents, it would be harmful to talk at this time about U.S. military assistance to Israel.

However he restated what he said was the U.S. national interest in "the sovereignty, independence, the territorial integrity of Israel."

He described as "a new factor and a very serious factor" the introduction of the new Soviet SAM3 antiaircraft missiles in Egypt and the flying of aircraft there by Soviet pilots.

But he added: "We're not inclined to think that Israel is at the moment unable to support itself militarily."

Other Commitments

Speaking to newsmen in advance of his Sunday departure on a two-week Asian trip, the U.S. secretary of state also said:

—The main aim of U.S. air operations in Cambodia, which will continue after U.S. troops withdraw by June 30, is "to protect Americans in South Vietnam."

He said obviously the U.S. air attacks designed to interdict enemy troops and material in Cambodia will at times "benefit the forces of Cambodia." But the policy is not to have direct U.S. military involvement to support Cambodia's Lon Nol regime, he said.

—President Nixon is planning to name a U.S. ambassador to Cambodia. Hitherto a charge d'affaires has been in charge of the U.S. diplomatic mission at Phnom Penh.

Agreement Sought

—There "is reason to hope that we can reach an agreement" at the U.S.-Soviet strategic arms limitation (SALT) talks at Vienna. A limited accord might be "reached in the near future"—he declined to say just when. But if only a limited initial agreement is reached, he said, more arms curb agreements would be sought thereafter.

—No decision has been made yet on what support the United States might give to Thailand for Thai military operations in Cambodia.

—Completing his Asian trip, he will return to the United States by way of London, where he will

Agnew Praises Nixon's Decision On Cambodia

DENVER (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew says sending U.S. troops into Cambodia was "a decision of heroic proportions."

Addressing a Republican fund-raising dinner while anti-war demonstrators clashed with police outside the hall Wednesday night, Agnew described the Cambodian venture as "the most successful military operation of the entire war."

Police said they booked 25 persons from a crowd of about 400 on charges including disturbance, resisting arrest, assault and obscene language.

Richardson Faces Knotty Problems As HEW Director

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elliott L. Richardson has officially transferred his diplomatic skills to the troubled Department of Health, Education and Welfare where he faces immediate, knotty problems.

The former undersecretary of state, was sworn in as the No. 1 man at HEW Wednesday and was immediately faced with problems endemic to HEW—civil rights and consumer protection, among others.

HEW civil rights officials, for example, have readied a letter for the secretary's signature calling on southern districts to end in-school discrimination as well as segregation this fall.

Officials of the Food and Drug Administration will urge Richardson to modify a controversial department decision to allow cyclamate-sweetened foods to remain on grocery shelves despite possible health hazards.

The American Medical Association, a powerful interest group with which all HEW secretaries must wrestle, voiced displeasure this week over recent FDA actions on oral contraceptives and certain medications for diabetics.

The AMA is expected to insist that Richardson rescind the FDA requirement of packaged inserts warning women about possible hazards associated with birth control pills.

Organized medicine is also expected to protest what doctors see as their exclusion from crucial decisions on drug effectiveness and safety.

Richardson has so far brought only one new staff aid and two secretaries to HEW.

He must decide whom to keep from the team assembled by Robert H. Finch, his predecessor and now a White House counselor.

Elliott Richardson

Farmer, an assistant secretary and a one-time head of the Congress of Racial Equality, has publicly accused President Nixon of failing to understand and deal effectively with problems facing black Americans.

Savings Time Petitions OK, Court Claims

LANSING (AP) — The State Appeals Court ruled today that petitions seeking to put the Daylight Savings Time issue on the November election ballot are valid.

However, Daylight Time opponents are sure to appeal the issue to the State Supreme Court, said a spokesman for the State Elections Division.

Newspaper Sold To Satisfy Suit

CINCINNATI (AP) — An anti-trust action against the E. W. Scripps Co. has led to the sale of the Cincinnati Enquirer.

An investment group headed by Enquirer Publisher Francis L. Dale agreed to pay $17.5 million for approximately 501,000 shares of Enquirer stock, Scripps announced Wednesday.

In November 1968 Scripps was ordered to divest itself of its 59 per cent of the stock in the Enquirer, a morning newspaper. Scripps was granted a 45-day extension on a court-ordered May 1970 selling date. A second requested extension was opposed by the federal government earlier this week.

Israeli Planes Strike Targets Near Damascus

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli warplanes attacked two Syrian army camps near Damascus today, the Israeli military command announced. The raids close to the Syrian capital were in retaliation for a heavy Syrian tank and artillery attack on Israeli posts in the Golan Heights Wednesday night.

An Israeli spokesman said the air force attacked camps at Qatana, 16 miles southwest of Damascus, and Kiswah, 10 miles south of the city. He also reported an attack on another camp at Seijen, near Suwayda, 60 miles southeast of the capital.

A Syrian army spokesman in Damascus confirmed the attacks on Qatana and Kiswah, saying the Israeli jets bombed and strafed the two towns.

The Syrian spokesman said the Syrian air force and antiaircraft batteries challenged the raiders, but an Israeli spokesman reported, "All Israeli planes are safe."

Demos Foresee Win Even If They Lose On Veto Of Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats, figuring to be the winners even if they lose, moved today to override President Nixon's veto of a $1.25 billion hospital construction bill.

They went into today's vote not particularly confident of picking up the two-thirds majority to overcome the presidential rejection of the measure, but feeling relatively assured of making political hay regardless.

The Democrats felt they couldn't be hurt politically by voting for hospital construction at a time when Nixon is asking Congress to make available $750 million for loans to hard-pressed railroads.

Furthermore, many GOP members say they still are criticized back home for sustaining the President's veto of a big health and education money bill last January.

With congressional elections less than five months away, candidates don't want to provide their opposition any additional campaign fodder.

Republicans took no solid position on the veto at a party conference Wednesday. Some said they would vote to uphold the President with the understanding a new bill would be passed to meet major White House objections.

The bill didn't register a single vote of opposition when it passed the House and the Senate originally and again when it cleared both branches in compromise form.

A House override sends the measure to the Senate where another two-thirds majority is required.

But the President objected, particularly to a requirement that funds provided to implement the bill must be spent and not withheld.

Migrant Worker Dies In Accident

STANTON (AP) — A 48-year-old migrant worker from West Waco, Tex., suffocated Wednesday when a jeep he was driving overturned into a water-filled irrigation ditch on a vegetable farm.

Montcalm County sheriff's deputies said Alphonso Juarez Romero was pinned beneath the overturned jeep. A medical examiner listed the cause of death as accidental suffocation.

Dallas Dedicates JFK Monument

About 250 persons gathered for the ceremony beside the memorial, designed by New York architect Philip Johnson and erected near the west edge of the downtown district.

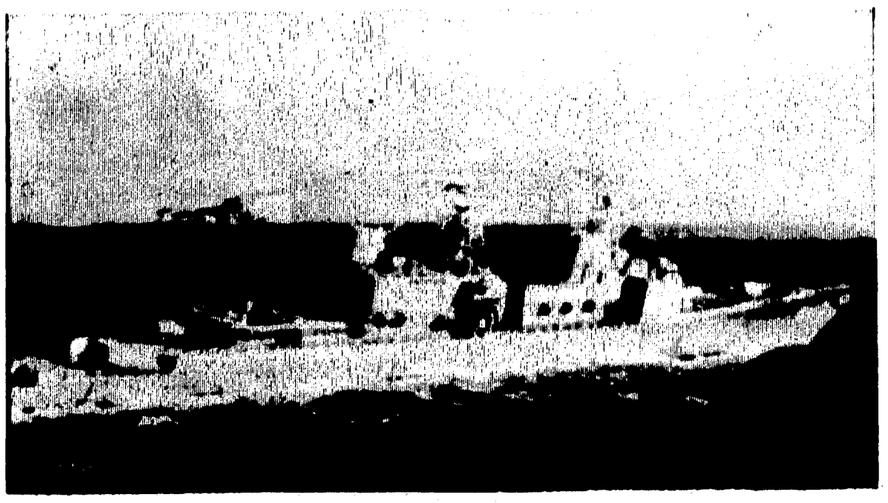

"Designing this memorial was the only way I had of honoring this man I loved and admired," said the architect, a friend of the Kennedy family.

Robert Cullum, vice chairman of the city's Kennedy Memorial Commission, said in reference to the Nov. 22, 1963, assassination, "The shock of that day has largely healed, so let this monument pay tribute to the life of that winsome man, not to his death."

None of the Kennedy family attended the ceremony, although all had been invited.

CINCINNATI (AP) — An anti-trust action against the E. W. Scripps Co. has led to the sale of the Cincinnati Enquirer.

An investment group headed by Enquirer Publisher Francis L. Dale agreed to pay $17.5 million for approximately 501,000 shares of Enquirer stock, Scripps announced Wednesday.

In November 1968 Scripps was ordered to divest itself of its 59 per cent of the stock in the Enquirer, a morning newspaper. Scripps was granted a 45-day extension on a court-ordered May 1970 selling date. A second requested extension was opposed by the federal government earlier this week.

Savings Time Petitions OK, Court Claims

LANSING (AP) — The State Appeals Court ruled today that petitions seeking to put the Daylight Savings Time issue on the November election ballot are valid.

However, Daylight Time opponents are sure to appeal the issue to the State Supreme Court, said a spokesman for the State Elections Division.

Israeli Planes Strike Targets Near Damascus

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli warplanes attacked two Syrian army camps near Damascus today, the Israeli military command announced. The raids close to the Syrian capital were in retaliation for a heavy Syrian tank and artillery attack on Israeli posts in the Golan Heights Wednesday night.

An Israeli spokesman said the air force attacked camps at Qatana, 16 miles southwest of Damascus, and Kiswah, 10 miles south of the city. He also reported an attack on another camp at Seijen, near Suwayda, 60 miles southeast of the capital.

A Syrian army spokesman in Damascus confirmed the attacks on Qatana and Kiswah, saying the Israeli jets bombed and strafed the two towns.

The Syrian spokesman said the Syrian air force and antiaircraft batteries challenged the raiders, but an Israeli spokesman reported, "All Israeli planes are safe."

Demos Foresee Win Even If They Lose On Veto Of Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats, figuring to be the winners even if they lose, moved today to override President Nixon's veto of a $1.25 billion hospital construction bill.

They went into today's vote not particularly confident of picking up the two-thirds majority to overcome the presidential rejection of the measure, but feeling relatively assured of making political hay regardless.

The Democrats felt they couldn't be hurt politically by voting for hospital construction at a time when Nixon is asking Congress to make available $750 million for loans to hard-pressed railroads.

Furthermore, many GOP members say they still are criticized back home for sustaining the President's veto of a big health and education money bill last January.

With congressional elections less than five months away, candidates don't want to provide their opposition any additional campaign fodder.

Republicans took no solid position on the veto at a party conference Wednesday. Some said they would vote to uphold the President with the understanding a new bill would be passed to meet major White House objections.

The bill didn't register a single vote of opposition when it passed the House and the Senate originally and again when it cleared both branches in compromise form.

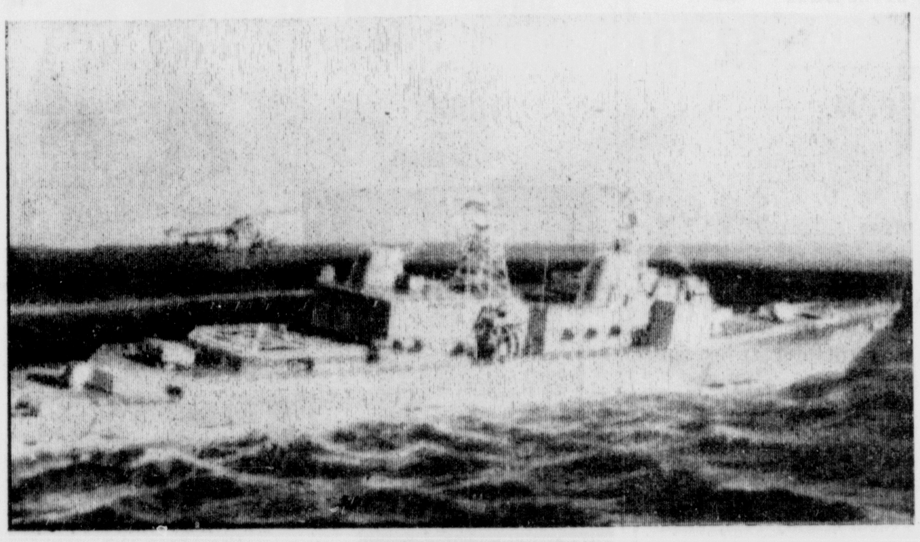

A House override sends the measure to the Senate where another two-thirds majority is required.

But the President objected, particularly to a requirement that funds provided to implement the bill must be spent and not withheld.

Migrant Worker Dies In Accident

STANTON (AP) — A 48-year-old migrant worker from West Waco, Tex., suffocated Wednesday when a jeep he was driving overturned into a water-filled irrigation ditch on a vegetable farm.

Montcalm County sheriff's deputies said Alphonso Juarez Romero was pinned beneath the overturned jeep. A medical examiner listed the cause of death as accidental suffocation.

Amway Products Rating Noted In Report To City

The position of Amway Products in relationship to phosphate ratings was noted in a communication to City Manager George Harvey from Randy Preston, Amway Corp. director distributor services.

"Amway, since its inception a little over 11 years ago, has always been in the forefront for a cleaner environment and pioneered in the industry with the use of biodegradable surfactant ingredients in many of its cleaning products," Preston reported.

"Amway is exercising every effort, financially and through its research and development facilities, to reduce substantially the phosphate content of its cleaning products. It is interesting to note that Amway currently markets 11 cleaning products with little or no phosphates."

The report from Preston was in reply to an inquiry by the city and clarified information which had been publicized about the phosphate content of cleaning products. In the case of Amway, however, the high rated product was a water softener, not a detergent.

Coast Guard, Law Officers 'Go Fishing,' Net Lost Boat

The United States Coast Guard and the Delta County Sheriff's Department joined forces Wednesday morning to rescue a boat that had broken loose in Little Bay de Noc.

A fishing boat, which had been partially converted to a pleasure boat by Robert Bullard, 1608 Lake Shore Drive, Gladstone, was being towed across the bay by a 16-foot runabout driven by David Nelson, Rte. 1, Gladstone.

The plastic line, which was being used to tow the boat, broke and Nelson had to leave the boat to come into the Coast Guard station for help.

The Coast Guard went out and pulled the boat in and Robert Dunstone, marine officer for the Sheriff's Department, assisted when they reached Escanaba.

Bullard was bringing the boat to Escanaba for further repairs.

Waves on the bay were six to eight feet high at the time of the incident and the wind was estimated at 40 to 50 miles an hour, the Sheriff's Department said.

Divorces granted Wednesday in Circuit Court by Judge Bernard H. Davidson were Mary Terese Weiss Bajanen from Maynard E. Bajanen, Ruby A. Palka from Edward A. Palka Sr., James D. Stanton from Linda A. Stanton, Donna J. Gilliland from Wayne R. Gilliland, Dianne S. Plouff from Clinton J. Plouff, Edna Mae Kemp from Lloyd A. Kemp, Patricia K. Johnson from Kenneth W. Johnson, Kathryn M. Car Unveiling Set At Bridge

ST. IGNACE — Conservationists and historians will join hands Sunday at 1:30 p.m. on the Mackinac Bridge fare plaza to unveil the partially reconditioned 1951 station wagon that was the first unofficial vehicle to cross the Mackinac Bridge at its opening on Nov. 1, 1957.

The public is invited. The car will be on exhibit all summer.

District Court

Arthur W. Erickson, 38, 1120 Minneapolis Ave., Gladstone, was found guilty of driving under the influence of liquor and was ordered to pay a $50 fine and $50 costs.

Phillip D. Carlson, Rte. 1 Escanaba, paid a $10 fine and $9 costs after pleading guilty to fishing without a license.

James R. Walters, Garden, pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault and battery and was released on a personal recognizance bond. He will be tried at a later date.

Molin To Direct Milliken Effort

Keith E. Molin, chairman of the Wayne County Republican Committee, has been named manager of Gov. William G. Milliken's 1970 election campaign, the Governor announced today.

"Molin is a political professional — in the finest sense of that term," said the governor. "But more importantly, he shares my determination to conduct a vigorous election campaign that will concentrate on the issues, avoiding narrow partisanship."

Molin, 33, has taken a leave of absence from his post as executive vice president of the Detroit Central Business District Association to manage the campaign.

An intercollegiate debating champion while a student at Northern Michigan University, Molin broke into politcs in 1962 as a field representative for the Michigan Republican Party and later became the party's director of organization.

He was director of special groups in George Romney's re-election campaign in 1964 and also served as assistant to the chairman of the Rockefeller for President campaign in the midwest region.

A native of Escanaba, Molin was also active in the 1966 campaign in Michigan, serving as scheduling coordinator in Robert P. Griffin's successful campaign for tne U. S. Senate and as coordinator in U. S. Rep. Philip E. Ruppe's election in the 11th Congressional District.

Gov. Milliken's campaign this year will be coordinated by the Michigan for Milliken Committee, a volunteer organization headed by S. John Byington, a Detroit communications executive. The committee has offices in Lansing and Detroit.

Molin and his wife Peg, who is also associated with the committee, live in Westland.

Help Asked To Cut Damages At Ness Field

The City Recreation Department requests the cooperation of children and parents living in the area of the Al Ness Field in helping to reduce the damage being done to that facility. The Recreation Department wishes to remind the public that the Ness field is reserved for the Escanaba Cubs, and that it is not to be used for "pick-up games or as a race track for bikes or motor bikes.

Children are invited to use the diamond behind the New Jefferson School for their ball gmes. This field is official Little League size, and has been provided and maintained especially to be used as a recreational facility for the children of that area, recreation officials stated.

Damages to the Ness Field has already necessitated a complete resurfacing of the infield, one of the bleachers has been destroyed beyond repair, and the outfield fence has had a considerable number of laths broken out, apparently by children climbing over the fence and running into it with bikes. The Recreation Department is concerned not only because of the considerable expense involved in repairing the damage, and the high risk of personal injury to the children involved in the destruction; but also because of the possibility of serious injury to one of the Escanaba Cubs or to a visiting player or fan legitimately using the field.

The cooperation of parents and children is the only efficient curb to the destruction being done, and the Recreation Department earnestly solicits this cooperation, so that adequate and safe facilities may be available to all, officials said today.

Fishing Action Reported Fair

A vacation or long week-end which includes fishing possibly could be made more successful by several informational publications available from the DNR at Lansing.

Among these are "Great Lakes Fishing in Michigan's Upper Peninsula" and "Michigan Fish — How to Catch Them." The publications are free and can be obtained by writing the DNR in Lansing.

Alger County - Trout fishing is good with Ackerman Lake recommended for rainbow, Shelter Bay for lake trout, and the Whitefish and Slapneck for brook trout. Bass, panfish, and northern pike fishing is also good on the Au Train Basin. Rated as fair is walleye success on Au Train Lake in early mornings or late evenings, using night crawlers.

Delta County - Continuing to highlight the picture in this area is bass and northern pike fishing in the Big Bay de Noc area. Best areas are around St. Vital's Island, off the mouth of the Big River, off Butler's Beach, and in Garden Bay and South River Bay. Trout fishing is only fair with the Sturgeon, 18-Mile and Square Lake suggested. Perch fishing continues fair to good at Nahma, Garden Bay, off Big River and in Little Bay de Noc above Gladstone.

Marquette County - Best in this area is lake trout fishing out of Marquette Harbor with several fish in the 10 pound class taken. A few coho are also being taken by fishing a high line incidental to lake trout trolling. Perch fishing is good on Big Shag Lake and bluegill success also good on Little Shag and Anderson lakes. Most streams are rated fair for trout. Bass are fair on Bass Lake in T45N-R25 & 24W on plugs and minnows. Lake Independence is giving up a few walleye but they seem to be running small.

Because the Date Line curves around the south Pacific kingdom, Tonga, the new day dawns on the islands earlier than at any other inhabited place on the globe. Tongans call their islands, "the place where time begins."

Hannahville Will Get Housing Funds

Congressman Philip Ruppe has announced today the approval of low-rent public housing for the Hanahville Indians.

The $335,807 contract from the Department of Housing and Urban Development will enable Michigan Pottowatomi Housing Authority to construct 15 single family homes on the reservation.

The contract also includes funds for land improvement, water and sewer systems for the 15 houses involved.

Player Raids

The National Collegiate Athletic Association made quite a fuss last week when the Denver Rockets of the American Basketball Association put Michigan State's star scorer Ralph Simpson under contract for a reported $1 million. Boycott the ABA, the NCAA said, and refuse to allow coaches and scouts to visit athletic departments or watch their teams practice.

Before the boycott got off the ground, however, ABA Commissioner Jack Dolph announced that the league would refuse to recognize the contract, if a contract existed, and Adolph Rupp, coach at the University of Kentucky and president of the National Association of Basketball Coaches said "it's all over."

Exactly what will happen to Simpson isn't so clear — because he signed a professional contract his college career apparently is over and because the ABA won't accept the contract his professional career can't begin — and the whole mess eventually may wind up in court. What the case does, however, is to dramatize again the delicate balance between professional teams and their college proving grounds and the tight rein necessary to maintain that balance. It is especially true in the sports of basketball and football, the collegiate money makers, and the only significant "farm system" for professional teams. If the pro teams started grabbing all the top talent — like the Denver Rockets did with Spencer Haywood from the University of Detroit and tried to do with Michigan State's Simpson — before the collegians used up their eligibility it wouldn't take long to create chaos on the athletic fields to match the disorders on campus.

Commissioner Dolph said Simpson's signing violates provisions of the ABA bylaws which prohibit any member club from signing players whose college eligibility has not expired and Commissioner Walter Kennedy of the rival NBA said his league's policy is similar. The National and American Football Leagues also stay an arm's length until a player's class graduates.

It's sound policy, for besides protecting the collegiate athletic program the player drafts of the football and basketball leagues provide a degree of equality of opportunity. If the policy didn't exist or wasn't enforced, a free-for-all would develop between teams and leagues bidding for any player at any point in his college career. By trying to sign Simpson, the Denver team was trying to circumvent the orderly process of the league and obtain a player they probably couldn't get in two years through the regular player draft. With Spencer Haywood on the floor, the Rockets aren't likely to finish poorly enough in the league to get an early draft choice (the team with the worst record chooses first) and when Simpson is in the talent pool legally he won't last very long. So the Rockets tried to grab him early like they did Haywood.

The signing of Haywood must have had the league's blessing as a major steal from the NBA. Now, with merger talks going on between the two leagues, the ABA is tryin to improve its image and allowing Denver to get away with Simpson could have severely damaged those discussions.

That the NCAA would react so sharply is understandable, but is not really too consistent when the organization's overall approach is considered. It boils down to dollars.

As costs continue to soar (scholarships, equipment, training facilities, fields, maintenance, salaries of coaches, transportation, etc.) major colleges and universities rely on basketball and football receipts to pay the bills. A player like Simpson can make the difference between a winning or losing team with resulting consequences at the gate. On the football field, one player (where would Southern California have been a couple of years ago without O. J. Simpson?) can mean a lucrative post season game.

And so when the pros take away a star before his college eligibility is over, it's only logical that the NCAA should scream.

The strange thing about the scream is that major league baseball teams regularly sign college players off campuses with little or nothing said, except perhaps by the college coach who lost the heart of his team. Bill Freehan, now the regular catcher for the Tigers, was paid a big bonus by the Tigers to sign a contract after his sophomore year at the University of Michigan. But Detroit scouts weren't barred from the Michigan campus and the NCAA didn't say a word. Baseball doesn't bring in much money at Michigan so the only loss was competitive, not financial.

Hopefully, however, professional raids on college athletic talent will be kept to a minimum by the pros own regulations and that NCAA action won't be needed. It's essential from both points of view.

THE JUGGLER

Views Of Jesse Owens Need To Be Sold, Too

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The Black Panthers can't be very numerous—a figure attributed to the FBI puts their number at somewhere under 1,000 for the whole nation. Yet this small band of professed Marxist revolutionaries seems to have cast a spell on the contemporary college generation, whether white or black.

A talk with Andy Coe, the Yale 1969 football captain, is revealing: Andy stresses the good the Panthers do in providing breakfast for slum children and giving the more militant blacks a sense of pride.

Well, as Andy says, even revolutionaries should get elementary justice, such as fair trials and freedom from false arrests. We can agree to that.

But why is it that the young on the campuses seem to have the idea that it is the Panthers alone who are concerned with putting food in the stomachs of the hungry and teaching the members of the Negro community to hold their heads high? I think of Dr. Thomas Matthew, dedicated Negro neurosurgeon who has started a score of businesses which give employment to blacks. There are others besides Dr. Matthew. For example, Jesse Owens, who splintered the Nazi claims of "Aryan" superiority in sports by winning four gold medals at the 1936 Berlin Olympic Games.

How many undergraduates who think of the Panthers as constituting the true Negro leadership have read Jesse Owens' recent "Blackthink: My Life as Black Man and White Man"?

Owens thinks the militants are a drag on the social and economic emancipation of the blacks (political emancipation is already a reality in most of the country, as the existence of Negro mayors and legislative representatives proves). He challenges the extremist Rap Browns and Harry Edwardses, the Black Panthers and the Black Muslims, with his own set of figures. The estimates for the Black Muslims range from 8,000 to 80,000—an uncertain statistic which would argue that the Muslims come and go, not pausing to be counted in any accurate poll.

As against the Muslims there are non-militant organizations whose figures do not fluctuate or otherwise baffle the statisticians.

Jesse Owens mentions the women. There are 40,000 Negro women in Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority, which fosters higher scholastic standards among blacks. There are three million in the National Council of Negro Women, who work peacefully for social and economic growth.

For men and women both, such organizations as the NAACP (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People) and the Urban League are an old story. The NAACP is not composed of Uncle Toms: a few weeks ago I talked with some of their leaders in South Carolina, and, while they are courteous enough, they say things to your face that are jolting to hear.

Jesse Owens admits to occasional relapses into hate; no Negro who has had his experiences can forget certain insults. But when he analyzed the hatred for "whitey" that the militants cultivate he discovered that most of it could be traced back to hidden feelings of self-hate and self-disgust.

Martin Luther King confessed to Jesse Owens that he, too, sometimes hated the white man "for just a little while." But Dr. King didn't let it affect his life. He told Jesse Owens to "biuld on what you know, what you love." It took years for Jesse to realize that he could build on his past as "the world's fastest human" by working with youngsters, mainly through the lesson of athletics. The most gratifying work he ever did was dealing with juvenile delinquency as a sports specialist with the Illinois Youth Commission.

Jesse believes that real progress is made in the world "one shot at a time" and "one kid at a time." He is critical in a kindly way of the type of mistake which a young Negro tennis star like Arthur Ashe can make through over-politicalization of life. Ashe once cancelled a commitment to play tennis for a handful of ghetto kids in Chicago in order to do an interview with a national magazine about what he thought could be done to remedy "society's ills."

It was Sargent Shriver, Owens says, who convinced Ashe that the magazine story was more important than pleasing a hundred grammar school youngsters by walking into their bailiwick and performing for them. After the Ashe cancellation was announced Jesse watched the kids as they, in turn, watched Rod Laver, a white substitute, hit a few balls. The kids were numb. Some couldn't hold back their tears. Others, too tough to admit emotion, went home even tougher than they had been before.

"We'll hear from some of them," says Jesse, "when it's too late for them to be changed by . . . any high-sounding interviews in national magazines."

But it is too bad that Jesse Owens' point of view doesn't get hawked on the street corners, too. We need the corrective if we are to have any of the balance that makes for meaningful education.

State Doctor Suggests Shorter Hospital Stays

CHICAGO (AP) — Shorter hospital stays for most surgical patients not only reduce the cost but aid in their recovery, a Michigan doctor said Wednesday.

"It is now possible and desirable to discharge the majority of surgical patients on the first or second postoperative day," Dr. Paul T. Lahti told a session of the American Medical Association convention.

Lahti, senior attending surgeon at William Beaumont Hospital Royal Oak, said that before patients were allowed to be out of bed soon after surgery many died of pneumonia and other complications.

"Recovery was slow, not from the surgical trauma, but from the prolonged period of inactivity and bedrest," he said.

"If a healthy person without surgery were put to bed for a week and given narcotics at intervals it would take him several weeks to recover from the experience," he noted.

The length of hospital stays has been steadily declining since 1941, he said and added, "It is difficult to overcome the traditions and habits of the past but the results are certainly worth the effort."

Lahti said a 1968 survey showed that a person would save $61 for each day he was discharged early from the hospital, and added that early dismissal could reduce hospital costs by 30 per cent.

The surgeon did a study of 1,114 early discharge patients who underwent surgery for a number of conditions including hernia, appendicidis, henorrhoids, breast tumor and other problems.

While the average hospital stay for patients in 1968 was 8.4 days, Lahti said, all patients in his study were discharged by the seventh day and 75 per cent of them were out of the hospital by the second day after surgery.

The doctor's approach to the patient has a bearing on how the patient will fare in the hospital, he said. The usual patient in the hospital for major surgery is frightened of the unknown, he said. When the patient is told that he will be in the hospital for several days, "he interprets this to mean that he will be ill," the surgeon said.

When he awakens from the anesthetic, "his fears are all brought to the surface," Lahti added. "Any minor discomfort is magnified into real pain. Narcotics only prolong the recovery period"

"In contrast the patient who knows that he will be up and about the afternoon of surgery and home the day after surgery, is relaxed, nor fearful and requires much less postoperative medication," he said.

Lahti recommended that patients be given analgestics — mild pain killers—after surgery rather than narcotics "to relieve the normal amount of discmofort."

OK Wage Increase For City Employes

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—City commissioners have approved formally a new two-year contract with Grand Rapids' more than 800 nonuniformed city employes. There was just one dissenting vote.

The agreement calls for seven per cent wage boost July 1 and another increase of five per cent on July 1, 1971. It also provides a union shop provision, requiring all employes to pay sums equal to union dues even if they are not union members.

Opening lead—king of diamonds.

It is not difficult to make four spades on this hand—provided you know where the jack of clubs is located. All you have to do to hold yourself to one club loser is to lead the club deuce towards dummy and finesse the ten.

But this method of play would earn you no garlands if it turned out that East had the jack of clubs. In that case, you would certainly regret having failed to lead the five from dummy in order to finesse the nine.

Since one seldom knows in such situations exactly where the jack is located, it might be interesting to study the technically proper approach to the play. The last thing a declarer should want to do is make an out-and-out guess for the jack.

One way of trying to avoid the guess is to play for a 3-3 heart division, in which case dummy's fourth heart can be utilized for a club discard.

Certainly this type of thinking is a step in the right direction, but declarer's task is not fully performed if he settles for only this one additional chance. There is a further possibility of making the contract even if the hearts are divided 4-2.

The best line of play, after trumping the diamond lead, is to ruff out dummy's remaining diamonds. Accordingly, declarer leads a trump to dummy's eight at trick two, ruffs a second diamond, then returns to dummy with a trump and ruffs dummy's last diamond.

Now declarer plays the ace and another heart. As it happens, West wins with the queen (East canot afford to overtake), and is forced to return a club or yield a ruff and discard. Either way, South avoids the critical club guess and coasts home with ten tricks.

TESTIMONY

I wish to make a correction in an article which appeared in Tuesday's paper regarding the testimony in the Rodney Cartwright hearing.

AIRPORT INQUIRY

We believe the Daily Press analogy of the airport problem has not been fairly presented. Our criticism has been directed toward airport management, and since Mr. (Jon) Thorin is the manager, naturally he would be the one who would be criticized.

The problem has been oversimplified by the council and the city manager and shrugged off as a personality clash. Actually, this is an attempt by two citizens to inquire in a lawful fashion about a government function—expenditue of government money and "modus operandi".

Mansfield Raps Nation's Economy

"The things that should be going up—home building, take-home pay and real economic growth—are coming down. At the same time the things that should be coming down—such as interest rates, the cost of living and unemployment—are going up." Social Security Set Romeos Take Heed!

Dear Ann Landers: Kindly devote a column to the Romeos of the Social Security Set — the way they worm their way into the widow's home, lounging on the well-made, expensive furniture, bought and paid for by a fine husband who worked his fingers to the bone (may his soul rest in peace.)

My elderly mother and I live together in the family home. I have not been in very good health lately. My biggest worry is that a certain old coot who has been courting Mother for several months will marry her if I should die. I've tried to open her eyes but she is flattered by his attention and acts like a silly school girl when he is around.

The man is like a bone in my throat. I can't stand him. Please give Mother some advice, Ann. She reads your column every day, and if the old coot reads it too, that's perfectly fine with me. — Hate Old Men

Dear Hate: If the furniture is as good as you say, he won't hurt it. Apparently your mother enjoys the old coot's company and that's her business. You need a hobby, kiddo. I recommend a young coot.

Dear Ann Landers: My sister passed away six months ago. She was only 34 and left three young children. Her husband was never one of my favorite people. Last week I bumped into him at an antique auction. He was talking antimatedly with a good looking, blond woman. I couldn't tell whether they were together. I greeted my brother-in-law as warmly as I could under the circumstances — which was not easy. I noticed he was not wearing his wedding ring. This was like a knife in my heart. My sister always loved to see that ring on his finger. She was so proud that he was never without it.

This incident has bothered me terribly. Should I get it off my chest and tell him what I think of him for forgetting so soon? — Still Mourning

Dear S. M.: Perhaps wearing that wedding ring would be like a knife in his heart, so why don't you tend to your knitting and let your brother-in-law handle his grief in his own way?

Dear Ann Landers: Our baby is three months old. This is the first child in my husband's family for 25 years so you can imagine the excitement.

Whenever we walk into a gathering of his relatives, they go wild over the baby and I am a nervous wreck. My mother-in-law grabs him, then an aunt comes along, next a cousin, then an uncle and a great-uncle — and round the room he goes, from one pair of hands to another like a lolly-pop, and everyone gets a lick.

Each one bounces him higher and handles him more roughly than the last. Naturally he spits up his lunch. My mother-in-law then demands to know what I fed him that cause him to throw up. They figure that since this is my first child I am a dumbbell and don't know anything.

What can I do with all these well-meaning idiots? I'm ready to try anything. — Alexandria, La.

Dear Al: You're not going to change your relatives, nor can you dampen their enthusiasm for the crown prince but you CAN eliminate the problem by leaving the baby home when you go to these family pow-wows. Infants don't belong at large adult gatherings. The relatives can see him when they come to your home — two or three at a time.

Shriver Working Hard For Others

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sargent Shriver, passing up any immediate run for public office, has taken over the job of bolstering Democratic congressional campaigns across the nation.

He said his party-backed "Congressional Leadership for the Future" project will be small but will try to interest persons not always involved in politics—celebrities, student leaders, business executives, educators and minority spokesmen—to help congressional candidates.

Shriver, a brother-in-law of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and until recently ambassador to France, had taken soundings on running for governor of Maryland but decided against it.

Player Raids

The National Collegiate Athletic Association made quite a fuss last week when the Denver Rockets of the American Basketball Association put Michigan State's star scorer Ralph Simpson under contract for a reported $1 million. Boycott the ABA, the NCAA said, and refuse to allow coaches and scouts to visit athletic departments or watch their teams practice.

Before the boycott got off the ground, however, ABA Commissioner Jack Dolph announced that the league would refuse to recognize the contract, if a contract existed, and Adolph Rupp, coach at the University of Kentucky and president of the National Association of Basketball Coaches said "it's all over."

Exactly what will happen to Simpson isn't so clear — because he signed a professional contract his college career apparently is over and because the ABA won't accept the contract his professional career can't begin — and the whole mess eventually may wind up in court. What the case does, however, is to dramatize again the delicate balance between professional teams and their college proving grounds and the tight rein necessary to maintain that balance. It took years for Jesse to realize that he could build on his past as "the world's fastest human" by working with youngsters, mainly through the lesson of athletics. The most gratifying work he ever did was dealing with juvenile delinquency as a sports specialist with the Illinois Youth Commission.

Jesse believes that real progress is made in the world "one shot at a time" and "one kid at a time." He is critical in a kindly way of the type of mistake which a young Negro tennis star like Arthur Ashe can make through over-politicalization of life. Ashe once cancelled a commitment to play tennis for a handful of ghetto kids in Chicago in order to do an interview with a national magazine about what he thought could be done to remedy "society's ills."

It was Sargent Shriver, Owens says, who convinced Ashe that the magazine story was more important than pleasing a hundred grammar school youngsters by walking into their bailiwick and performing for them. After the Ashe cancellation was announced Jesse watched the kids as they, in turn, watched Rod Laver, a white substitute, hit a few balls. The kids were numb. Some couldn't hold back their tears. Others, too tough to admit emotion, went home even tougher than they had been before.

"We'll hear from some of them," says Jesse, "when it's too late for them to be changed by . . . any high-sounding interviews in national magazines."

But it is too bad that Jesse Owens' point of view doesn't get hawked on the street corners, too. We need the corrective if we are to have any of the balance that makes for meaningful education.

State Doctor Suggests Shorter Hospital Stays

CHICAGO (AP) — Shorter hospital stays for most surgical patients not only reduce the cost but aid in their recovery, a Michigan doctor said Wednesday.

"It is now possible and desirable to discharge the majority of surgical patients on the first or second postoperative day," Dr. Paul T. Lahti told a session of the American Medical Association convention.

Lahti, senior attending surgeon at William Beaumont Hospital Royal Oak, said that before patients were allowed to be out of bed soon after surgery many died of pneumonia and other complications.

"Recovery was slow, not from the surgical trauma, but from the prolonged period of inactivity and bedrest," he said.

"If a healthy person without surgery were put to bed for a week and given narcotics at intervals it would take him several weeks to recover from the experience," he noted.

The length of hospital stays has been steadily declining since 1941, he said and added, "It is difficult to overcome the traditions and habits of the past but the results are certainly worth the effort."

Lahti said a 1968 survey showed that a person would save $61 for each day he was discharged early from the hospital, and added that early dismissal could reduce hospital costs by 30 per cent.

The surgeon did a study of 1,114 early discharge patients who underwent surgery for a number of conditions including hernia, appendicidis, henorrhoids, breast tumor and other problems.

While the average hospital stay for patients in 1968 was 8.4 days, Lahti said, all patients in his study were discharged by the seventh day and 75 per cent of them were out of the hospital by the second day after surgery.

The doctor's approach to the patient has a bearing on how the patient will fare in the hospital, he said. The usual patient in the hospital for major surgery is frightened of the unknown, he said. When the patient is told that he will be in the hospital for several days, "he interprets this to mean that he will be ill," the surgeon said.

When he awakens from the anesthetic, "his fears are all brought to the surface," Lahti added. "Any minor discomfort is magnified into real pain. Narcotics only prolong the recovery period"

"In contrast the patient who knows that he will be up and about the afternoon of surgery and home the day after surgery, is relaxed, nor fearful and requires much less postoperative medication," he said.

Lahti recommended that patients be given analgestics — mild pain killers—after surgery rather than narcotics "to relieve the normal amount of discmofort."

OK Wage Increase For City Employes

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—City commissioners have approved formally a new two-year contract with Grand Rapids' more than 800 nonuniformed city employes. There was just one dissenting vote.

The agreement calls for seven per cent wage boost July 1 and another increase of five per cent on July 1, 1971. It also provides a union shop provision, requiring all employes to pay sums equal to union dues even if they are not union members.

Opening lead—king of diamonds.

It is not difficult to make four spades on this hand—provided you know where the jack of clubs is located. All you have to do to hold yourself to one club loser is to lead the club deuce towards dummy and finesse the ten.

But this method of play would earn you no garlands if it turned out that East had the jack of clubs. In that case, you would certainly regret having failed to lead the five from dummy in order to finesse the nine.

Since one seldom knows in such situations exactly where the jack is located, it might be interesting to study the technically proper approach to the play. The last thing a declarer should want to do is make an out-and-out guess for the jack.

One way of trying to avoid the guess is to play for a 3-3 heart division, in which case dummy's fourth heart can be utilized for a club discard.

Certainly this type of thinking is a step in the right direction, but declarer's task is not fully performed if he settles for only this one additional chance. There is a further possibility of making the contract even if the hearts are divided 4-2.

The best line of play, after trumping the diamond lead, is to ruff out dummy's remaining diamonds. Accordingly, declarer leads a trump to dummy's eight at trick two, ruffs a second diamond, then returns to dummy with a trump and ruffs dummy's last diamond.

Now declarer plays the ace and another heart. As it happens, West wins with the queen (East canot afford to overtake), and is forced to return a club or yield a ruff and discard. Either way, South avoids the critical club guess and coasts home with ten tricks.

TESTIMONY

I wish to make a correction in an article which appeared in Tuesday's paper regarding the testimony in the Rodney Cartwright hearing.

If you check the records you will find that I stated that I had loaned Mr. Cartwright a sum of money and did not give it to him as stated. Also, your statement that I lived with Mr. Cartwright was an incorrect interpretation of the facts.

AIRPORT INQUIRY

We believe the Daily Press analogy of the airport problem has not been fairly presented. Our criticism has been directed toward airport management, and since Mr. (Jon) Thorin is the manager, naturally he would be the one who would be criticized.

The problem has been oversimplified by the council and the city manager and shrugged off as a personality clash. Actually, this is an attempt by two citizens to inquire in a lawful fashion about a government function—expenditue of government money and "modus operandi".

Mansfield Raps Nation's Economy

By The Associated Press

"The things that should be going up—home building, take-home pay and real economic growth—are coming down. At the same time the things that should be coming down—such as interest rates, the cost of living and unemployment—are going up." Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana in a radio-television address to the nation.

Each transit of a ship through the lake-fed Panama Canal sends 52,000,000 gallons of fresh water into the sea—enough to supply a city of 350,000 for a day.

Social Security Set Romeos Take Heed!

Dear Ann Landers: Kindly devote a column to the Romeos of the Social Security Set — the way they worm their way into the widow's home, lounging on the well-made, expensive furniture, bought and paid for by a fine husband who worked his fingers to the bone (may his soul rest in peace.)

My elderly mother and I live together in the family home. I have not been in very good health lately. My biggest worry is that a certain old coot who has been courting Mother for several months will marry her if I should die. I've tried to open her eyes but she is flattered by his attention and acts like a silly school girl when he is around.

The man is like a bone in my throat. I can't stand him. Please give Mother some advice, Ann. She reads your column every day, and if the old coot reads it too, that's perfectly fine with me. — Hate Old Men

Dear Hate: If the furniture is as good as you say, he won't hurt it. Apparently your mother enjoys the old coot's company and that's her business. You need a hobby, kiddo. I recommend a young coot.

★ ★ ★

Dear Ann Landers: My sister passed away six months ago. She was only 34 and left three young children. Her husband was never one of my favorite people. Last week I bumped into him at an antique auction. He was talking antimatedly with a good looking, blond woman. I couldn't tell whether they were together. I greeted my brother-in-law as warmly as I could under the circumstances — which was not easy. I noticed he was not wearing his wedding ring. This was like a knife in my heart. My sister always loved to see that ring on his finger. She was so proud that he was never without it.

This incident has bothered me terribly. Should I get it off my chest and tell him what I think of him for forgetting so soon? — Still Mourning

Dear S. M.: Perhaps wearing that wedding ring would be like a knife in his heart, so why don't you tend to your knitting and let your brother-in-law handle his grief in his own way?

Dear Ann Landers: Our baby is three months old. This is the first child in my husband's family for 25 years so you can imagine the excitement.

Whenever we walk into a gathering of his relatives, they go wild over the baby and I am a nervous wreck. My mother-in-law grabs him, then an aunt comes along, next a cousin, then an uncle and a great-uncle — and round the room he goes, from one pair of hands to another like a lollypop, and everyone gets a lick.

Each one bounces him higher and handles him more roughly than the last. Naturally he spits up his lunch. My mother-in-law then demands to know what I fed him that cause him to throw up. They figure that since this is my first child I am a dumbbell and don't know anything.

What can I do with all these well-meaning idiots? I'm ready to try anything. — Alexandria, La.

Dear Al: You're not going to change your relatives, nor can you dampen their enthusiasm for the crown prince but you CAN eliminate the problem by leaving the baby home when you go to these family pow-wows. Infants don't belong at large adult gatherings. The relatives can see him when they come to your home — two or three at a time.

Shriver Working Hard For Others

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sargent Shriver, passing up any immediate run for public office, has taken over the job of bolstering Democratic congressional campaigns across the nation.

He said his party-backed "Congressional Leadership for the Future" project will be small but will try to interest persons not always involved in politics—celebrities, student leaders, business executives, educators and minority spokesmen—to help congressional candidates.

Shriver, a brother-in-law of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and until recently ambassador to France, had taken soundings on running for governor of Maryland but decided against it.

Doctor Finds Way To Get Rid Of 'Ouch'

CHICAGO (AP) — An Ohio doctor has found a way to take the ouch out of shots most children hate to take.

The doctor, Herman M. Lubens of Dayton, said at a news conference Wednesday, "I have a dream of having a generation of children grow up without fear of inoculations."

Lubens is affiliated with Children's Hospital Medical Center at the University of Cincinnati.

He and a colleague from that institution, Dr. Robert W. Ausdenmoore, and Dr. Alan D. Shafer of Barney Children's Medical Center, Dayton, won a certificate of merit for their scientific exhibit at the American Medical Association convention.

The method of eliminating pain from needle injections involves the application of an adhesive patch on which an anesthetic has been applied.

The numbing of the anesthetic starts in 20 to 30 minutes and the peak effect is achieved in two hours. The anesthetic looks like cold cream and contains an agent called licocaine.

Each adhesive patch has a blue square marked on it and this is placed over the area where the needle is to be injected.

This way, Lubens said, a mother can apply the anesthetic to the spot where the needle is to be stuck and prepare the child before taking him to the doctor's office.

Lubens said the anesthetic bandage is not yet commercially available. It has been tried for six or seven years on thousands of children, he said.

He said children's fears of doctors stem from their having been hurt and frightened by needles in the doctor's office. This fear often carries over into adulthood.

More people get more news from newspapers than all other sources combined.

Auto Industry Asks Air Bag Device Delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The automobile industry asked the National Highway Safety Bureau Wednesday for an extension of the 1973 deadline for putting air bag safety devices in new cars but 80 congressmen petitioned against the request.

The automakers, testifying at a bureau public hearing, said adequate research and development of the car safety devices might take until 1975.

The air bags, to be mounted under the dashboard and in front of the back seat, are designed to pop out and inflate automatically in a split-second after an accident, thereby preventing occupants from being hurled forward.

Last March, Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe declared the devices were needed because only 25 per cent of motorists take the trouble to fasten seat belts.

Originally, the Highway Safety Bureau proposed a Jan. 1, 1972 deadline for automakers to install safety bags, but Volpe extended the cutoff date to 1973. He said the bags could not be manufactured in time for 1972 models.

Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D—N.Y., and Sen. Frank E. Moss., D—Utah, chairman of the consumer subcommitee of the Seante Commerce Committee obtained signatures of 60 House members and 20 Senators on a letter supporting the 1973 deadline.

At the hearing, Stuart M. Frey, Ford Motor Co.'s chief body engineer, described the safety device as "a panacea" with "as yet unproven capabilities."

General Motors proposed a four-phase program which would delay making the safety devices mandatory until 1975.

GM Engineer David D. Campbell said his corporation wants to install 150,000 air bags on an optional basis in some of its 1973 "road evaluations" on highways before making them standard equipment.

Judge Will Rule On Changing Site Of Murder Trial

ANN ARBOR (AP) — Washtenaw Circuit Court Judge John W. Conlin will rule Monday on a renewed motion to change the site of the John Norman Collins murder trial.

The judge announced his plan to rule on the renewed motion late Wednesday after the final prospective juror in the fourth panel called for the trial was excused "for cause."

In the four weeks since the jury drawing began, 177 persons have been summoned as prospective jurors and 164 of them have been excused.

Thirteen persons have been tentatively seated. They face removal by peremptory challenges from either chief defense counsel Joseph Louisell or Prosecuting Atty. William F. Delhey. Louisell used one peremptory challenge Wednesday, reducing to eight the number to which he is still entitled. Delhey has nine peremptory challenges left. Collins, 23 is accused of first-degree murder in the death last summer of Karen Sue Beineman, 18, the last of seven young women killed in the Ann Arbor area in a two-year span.

School Accreditation Brings Heated Debate

The value of being accredited by the "North Central Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges" and the Community School Program were challenged at the regular board meeting of the Manistique Area Schools.

Tuesday's meeting, scheduled for policy review, resulted in considerable discussion of these and other issues.

When the question of adding an assistant principal to the administrative staff in order to comply with NCASSC recommendations arose, board member Robert Knoph questioned the value of accreditation.

Benefits Cited

It was pointed out that accreditation not only benefits the college-bound student, but community progress as well. Industry is more likely to be drawn to an area which maintains an accredited school, while an unaccredited school could discourage progress.

Knoph questioned whether or not a teacher presently employed in the district could cover a part-time principal position.

It was explained that in doing so, another area would have to be cut and the position could not be filled without additional cost.

Wants Jobs Eliminated

Knoph then suggested that the positions of business manager, Community School director and elementary supervisor be eliminated.

Superintendent, Edwin Wuehle, pointed out that the Community School Program does not cost the local school district any money.

Board member Jeanne Larson explained further that with the elimination of the adult education program, the district would also loose state aid payments for adults enrolled.

The board agreed to the possibility of eliminating the position of Elementary Supervisor.

After considerable discussion a suggestion was made to add to the list of objectives of the school system the board's desire to maintain an accredited school.

Voice Objection

Board members Leon Wood, William Mueller, and Robert Knoph voiced objection to the present policy of presenting itemized bills to the board for approval. They feel the board should review individual statements at their meetings.

Board President Denton Nelson suggested that if a question on a bill arises, the board member should investigate this in the school offices, prior to the board meeting.

Mueller suggested that due to the inconvenience of coming to the school offices, board members should be responsible enough to take the bills home with them for examination.

Suggestion Tabled

A suggestion by Wood to raise school lunch fees to 30 cents was tabled after Business Manager, Robert Kanerva, explained it was originally lowered to 25 cents in order to receive a 6 cent reimbursement from the state.

Other policy suggestions were the addition of the objective of preparing students for college and in another section that a two-year probationary period be required of all employes new to the school system.

School bus service, order of business during board meetings, and travel reimbursements were other areas of discussion.

July 13, is the scheduled reorganization meeting and the regular board meeting will follow on July 14.

State Plat Law Meeting Topic

The state plat law was discussed Monday night at the court house when county developers and planners and members of the Schoolcraft County Road Commission and County Board of Commissioners met with state officials.

R. S. D'Amelio, director of the local property services division, Bureau of Local Government Services, Department of the Treasury, and his assistant, Richard Lomax were present.

The meeting followed complaints by some area developers that platting requirements that included the building of access and subdivision roads to county standards was hindering the development of subdivisions in this area.

D'Amelio stressed that these are local problems between the road commission and subdivider, and should be solved on an individual basis.

He said he felt that the road requirements for Schoolcraft County, prepared by the Road Commission and approved by the old Board of Supervisors, were not excessive, and did not in any way restrict development.

In addition to the plat law, D'Amelio said it is imperative to have a county comprehensive plan, which Schoolcraft County has; a zoning ordinance, which the county has, but expires next April when a permanent ordinance must be adopted; and county building regulations, of which Schoolcraft has none.

Specific problems of local developers including private roads, were discussed.

Court Of Appeals Reverses Mafia Chief's Conviction

LANSING (AP) — The Michigan Court of Appeals has reversed the conviction of reputed Mafia chieftain Anthony Giacalone on charges of illegal possession of a blackjack.

The case was remanded Wednesday to Wayne County Circuit Court.

The appeals court said the search leading to discovery of the blackjack in Giacalone's home was a violation of his constitutional right "to be secure in his own home." The evidence was thus ruled inadmissible.

Giacalone's brother Vito currently is serving a five-year prison term on a similar charge.

Both Giacalones were named as leaders in the underworld in testimony before a congressional committee.

District Court

Paul Hoholik, Rte. 1, pleaded guilty to careless driving and was ordered to pay a $15 fine and $15 costs.

Alfred Walworth, Clare, was found guilty of driving under the influence of liquor and paid a $60 fine and $40 costs.

Robert Benish, 624 Arbutus Ave., pleaded guilty to reckless driving and paid a $30 fine and $20 costs.

Senate Okays, Rejects Bill On Dope Term

LANSING (AP) — The Michigan Senate agreed Wednesday to eliminate a mandatory 20-year prison term for selling or giving away narcotics—then did an about-face and eliminated its own decision.

After first passing the bill 21-15, the Senate spent more than 30 minutes in a parliamentary tug-of-war that left the bill in position for still another vote.

The bill in question would revise a law requiring judges to impose a 20-year sentence when a person is convicted for the first time of selling or dispensing such narcotics as marijuana and heroin.

In place of the mandatory sentence, the bill gives judges the power to sentence a first offender to any term up to 20 years.

In addition, the measure hikes the penalties for subsequent convictions.

Sen. Gordon Rockwell, R-Mount Morris, opened the door for the technical hassle when he asked that his "aye" vote on final passage be changed to "no." Rockwell said he had believed the bill included a mandatory five-year minimum sentence.

As the Senate rules provide, Rockwell's vote was changed when there was no objection.

That brought the total votes for the bill to 20—exactly the number needed for passage.

But then Sen. N. Lorraine Beebe, R-Dearborn, also asked that her "aye" vote be switched, and Sen. Alvin Degrow, R-Pigeon, followed suit.

The requests resulted in the parliamentary quandry, since the rules allow vote changes only if the outcome of the roll call is not changed. If the two "aye" votes were switched, as Mrs. Beebe and Degrow asked, the measure would have been killed.

A half-hour of haggling over the rules followed.

A later compromise "vacated" the roll call and postponed further action on the proposal which already has the approval of the House.

Wonder Drug Overcharge Case Settled

NEW YORK (AP)—A federal judge has approved an $82.5 million settlement of overcharge claims against five manufacturers of so-called "wonder drugs," including the Upjohn Co. of Kalamazoo.

Claimants in 43 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico will share in the settlement. Seven other states and numerous individual users of the broad-spectrum antibiotics are pursuing treble damage claims.

The settlement involves 66 of 150 lawsuits on file in connection with the case. Court papers showed more than $300 million in claims have been filed against the companies.

Judge Inzer B. Wyatt, approving the compromise, to which about $8 million in interest will be added, said the chances of success for those continuing will be "no better than 50-50 and probably should more realistically be called slight."

Three of the five manufacturers offering the money — Chas. Pfizer & Co., American Cyanamid Co. and Bristol-Myers Co.— were convicted Dec. 29, 1967, of criminal conspiracy to restrain trade and to organize an actual monopoly of the "wonder drug" market. The conviction was reversed by the U.S. Court of Appeals here last April 16. The government has filed for a rehearing of the appeal.

Spokesmen for the companies said then that this did not affect the decision to pay back the money.

Joining in the settlement offer were Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp. and Upjohn, which were not defendants in the criminal suit.

Court Of Appeals Reverses Mafia Chief's Conviction

LANSING (AP) — The Michigan Court of Appeals has reversed the conviction of reputed Mafia chieftain Anthony Giacalone on charges of illegal possession of a blackjack.

The case was remanded Wednesday to Wayne County Circuit Court.

The appeals court said the search leading to discovery of the blackjack in Giacalone's home was a violation of his constitutional right "to be secure in his own home." The evidence was thus ruled inadmissible.

Giacalone's brother Vito currently is serving a five-year prison term on a similar charge.

Both Giacalones were named as leaders in the underworld in testimony before a congressional committee.

District Court

Paul Hoholik, Rte. 1, pleaded guilty to careless driving and was ordered to pay a $15 fine and $15 costs.

Alfred Walworth, Clare, was found guilty of driving under the influence of liquor and paid a $60 fine and $40 costs.

Robert Benish, 624 Arbutus Ave., pleaded guilty to reckless driving and paid a $30 fine and $20 costs.

Senate Okays, Rejects Bill On Dope Term

LANSING (AP) — The Michigan Senate agreed Wednesday to eliminate a mandatory 20-year prison term for selling or giving away narcotics—then did an about-face and eliminated its own decision.

After first passing the bill 21-15, the Senate spent more than 30 minutes in a parliamentary tug-of-war that left the bill in position for still another vote.

The bill in question would revise a law requiring judges to impose a 20-year sentence when a person is convicted for the first time of selling or dispensing such narcotics as marijuana and heroin.

In place of the mandatory sentence, the bill gives judges the power to sentence a first offender to any term up to 20 years.

In addition, the measure hikes the penalties for subsequent convictions.

Sen. Gordon Rockwell, R-Mount Morris, opened the door for the technical hassle when he asked that his "aye" vote on final passage be changed to "no." Rockwell said he had believed the bill included a mandatory five-year minimum sentence.

As the Senate rules provide, Rockwell's vote was changed when there was no objection.

That brought the total votes for the bill to 20—exactly the number needed for passage.

But then Sen. N. Lorraine Beebe, R-Dearborn, also asked that her "aye" vote be switched, and Sen. Alvin Degrow, R-Pigeon, followed suit.

The requests resulted in the parliamentary quandry, since the rules allow vote changes only if the outcome of the roll call is not changed. If the two "aye" votes were switched, as Mrs. Beebe and Degrow asked, the measure would have been killed.

A half-hour of haggling over the rules followed.

A later compromise "vacated" the roll call and postponed further action on the proposal which already has the approval of the House.

Wonder Drug Overcharge Case Settled

NEW YORK (AP)—A federal judge has approved an $82.5 million settlement of overcharge claims against five manufacturers of so-called "wonder drugs," including the Upjohn Co. of Kalamazoo.

Claimants in 43 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico will share in the settlement. Seven other states and numerous individual users of the broad-spectrum antibiotics are pursuing treble damage claims.

The settlement involves 66 of 150 lawsuits on file in connection with the case. Court papers showed more than $300 million in claims have been filed against the companies.

Judge Inzer B. Wyatt, approving the compromise, to which about $8 million in interest will be added, said the chances of success for those continuing will be "no better than 50-50 and probably should more realistically be called slight."

Three of the five manufacturers offering the money — Chas. Pfizer & Co., American Cyanamid Co. and Bristol-Myers Co.— were convicted Dec. 29, 1967, of criminal conspiracy to restrain trade and to organize an actual monopoly of the "wonder drug" market. The conviction was reversed by the U.S. Court of Appeals here last April 16. The government has filed for a rehearing of the appeal.

Spokesmen for the companies said then that this did not affect the decision to pay back the money.

Joining in the settlement offer were Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp. and Upjohn, which were not defendants in the criminal suit.

Woman Irked After Losing Custodian Bid

FARMINGTON (AP) — Laverne Nichols, 32-year-old mother of seven, says she can mop floors and move furniture with the best of men and that the school board refused to promote her to head custodian only because she is a woman.

Her scores on written tests weren't as good, Prisk said, as those of William A. Brown, the man who got the promotion even though he has only 90 days's seniority compared to Mrs. Nichols' nine years.

Mrs. Nichols now is counting on her union, Local 1456 of the American Federation of County and Municipal Employes, to fight her case.

"I guess you could call me persistent. I don't give up easily," said Mrs. Nichols.

The job she wants at East Junior High is one her husband, Charles, held before he moved to another school several months ago.

The extra $200 she would earn as head custodian "would put a lot of bread and milk on the table" for her children, aged 4 to 18, she said.

And it would mean she would work days and not nights as she has done the past nine years.

School Teachers Out During Strike Don't Lose Tenure

LANSING (AP) — School teachers out during a labor dispute do not lose their tenure, Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley has held.

Kelley ruled a teacher on tenure and not under contract who withholds services because of a labor dispute has not discontinued his services within the meaning of the State Teacher Tenure Act.

It follows, Kelly said, that the teacher cannot be replaced permanently by the school district without further legal obligation. He also held a teacher does not lose tenure for withholding services during a labor dispute.

Kelley said he based his opinion on a State Supreme Court ruling in a Holland case. The high court held that teachers not under contract and who withhold their services as the result of a labor dispute remain employes of the school district.

The opinion was asked by Rep. Edgar Geerlings, R-Muskegon.

Sault Indians Finding 'Peace' At Lighthouse

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP)—More than 250 Indians—some wearing ceremonial dress, war paint, and beads — were given a guided tour of the Iroquois Point Lighthouse, 26 miles west of here, by forest rangers Wednesday, who promised to help the Indians acquire the lighthouse and its surrounding 62 acres for use as a youth center and museum.

Claiming they owned Iroquois Point under terms of two long-ignored treaties, the Indians had planned Wednesday to forceably "recapture" the land and lighthouse, now owned by the U.S. Forest Service.

As the Indians approached the lighthouse carrying banners reading "Indian Power," and yelling war-whoops, they were met by Alfred Troutt, district supervisor of the Hiawatha National Forest which includes Iroquois Point. Troutt unlocked the doors of the lighthouse, unused for the last 7 years, and showed them around the old, musty building which the forest service has ruled structurally unsafe.

After the tour, a leader of the young Indian group, Becky Carrick, 15, read a proclamation demanding that the United States end its "illegal occupation" of the lighthouse and recognize the Chippewa Indian Tribe as the "true owners." The Indians greeted the statement with a victory dance to the beat of two tom-toms.

Troutt told the Indians he would be happy to talk with them about their acquiring the land and lighthouse for renovation as a youth center and museum.

The Indian youths then adjourned to their home, the Bay Mills Indian Community 2 miles away, where they met with the tribal council to discuss concrete proposals for "reclaiming" the land.

Albert Leblanc, tribal chairman, said forest rangers told him they would help the Indians work out a plan for Indian use of the area.

Nixon Witnesses Richardson Shift

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon witnessed today the formal climax of his shift in top ranks of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare as Elliot L. Richardson became secretary and Robert H. Finch moved to the White House staff.

Richardson, who had been undersecretary of state, said he viewed his shift to HEW as "a high adventure" offering great opportunities "to move on to high ground" in service to people in need.

Finch, speaking briefly at the Rose Garden ceremony outside Nixon's office, described his White House assignment as "a higher calling."

What's Right With America, Nixon Theme

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon heads West today to work on a report on the conclusion of the U.S. intervention in Cambodia after first giving a speech on "what's right with America."

That was the phrase a Nixon associate used to describe the remarks the President scheduled today at the 50th anniversary convention of the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce in St. Louis.

Nixon is stopping in St. Louis en route to his seaside villa at San Clemente, Calif.

Making the trip with him were wife, Pat, daughter Tricia and a number of aides including chief of staff H. R. Haldeman, security adviser Henry A. Kissinger, appointments secretary Dwight Chapin and speech writer Patrick Buchanan.

The chief executive has yet to decide on a format for reporting to the nation on U.S. operations in Cambodia following the promised June 30 withdrawal of American troops from that country.

However, it was learned Nixon may make a nationwide television appearance next week from the western White House in San Clemente.

Nixon's talk to the Junior Chamber of Commerce was billed in advance as concerning "prospects for the future in the United States."

Chung Hee Park Stresses Need For U.S Troops

SEOUL (AP) — Seventeen years after the end of the Korean War, President Chung Hee Park said today that South Korea will need U.S. troops to protect it from North Korea "for a few more years." He said North Korea has completed preparations for another war and is now waiting for an opportunity to fulfill Premier Kim Il-sung's pledge to reunite the peninsula.

In a statement commemorating the 20th anniversary of the outbreak of the war, Park warned against any reduction in the 60,000-man U.S. military force in Korea.

Anti-Parochiaid Unit Files 319,317 Petitions

LANSING (AP) — The Council Against Parochiaid today filed petitions bearing 319,317 signatures with the elections division of the Secretary of State's office in an attempt to put the much debated issue on the November election ballot.

If the petitions are accepted and found legally correct, the voters would decide if the state may provide money for nonpublic schools.

Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley, however, already has ruled that the form of the petitions circulated by the council is faulty because of a technicality.

The problem is, Kelley said, tha the petitions are faulty in that they fail to state the language of the constitutional provision they seek to change.

Council leaders termed the response to their petition drive "terrific". Some 246,000 valid signatures are needed to place the issue on the ballot. The petitions circulators said they topped this by some 75,000.

The powerful Michigan Education Association spearheaded the petition drive.

Terry Herndon, association executive secretary, said if the Secretary of State's office refuses to accept the petitions as valid, the group will ask the State Court of Appeals to rule that the issue should be placed on the ballot.

The petitions were left with the elections division director, Bernard Apol. He said the decision on vallidity will be up to the Board of State Canvassers.

The board has the final say in election matters. It similarly has been involved in fights about Daylight Savings Time.

"The filing of these petitions today will frame the issue for a court response to the issue raised by Mr. Kelley," Herndon said. "We believe that the court will declare the people must have the opportunity to speak."

Minimum Wage Hike Due Soon

LANSING (AP) — Michigan's minimum wage will go up 20 cents to $1.45 an hour effective next Wednesday.

Gov. William Milliken Wednesday signed into law a bill hiking the wage minimum from the present $1.25 an hour.

Another increase to $1.60 an hour will become effective July 1, 1971.

State Labor Department officials have estimated the hike will affect between 150,000 and 200,000 workers in the state.

Milliken termed the measure "long overdue."

"This measure will benefit the thousands of Michigan laborers who have been working at a subsistence wage level that has not kept up with the rising cost of living," he said.

"In this age of abundance, we cannot afford to ignore this growing segment of our population that is prevented from escaping poverty because they are not paid sufficiently for laborers," he said.

As first passed by the House of Representatives, the second increase would have been effective Jan. 1, 1970. The Senate changed the date to July 1 of that year and the House went along with the delay.

Concerning the peace initiative, Rogers said:

"Recent and disquieting events in the Middle East led President Nixon on April 29 to order a thorough review of all political and military aspects of the problem. That review has now been concluded.

"As a consequence of the review, the United States has undertaken a political initiative the objective of which is to encourage the parties to stop shooting and start talking under the auspices of Ambassador Jarring in accordance with the resolutions of the Security Council.

"Our objective in launching this initiative has been to encourage the parties to move towards a just and lasting peace which takes fully into account he legitimate aspirations and concerns of all governments and peoples of the area. In light of that objective, we believe it would not be useful to disclose at this time detail of the political initiatives or to discuss publicly military assistance for Israel.

"We believe that this is the time for such an initiative which we have launched directly with the parties and with other interested powers."

Appalachian Program May Be Expanded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is studying the multistate effort to develop Appalachia with an eye toward making it the framework for President Nixon's "new federalism" approach to government grants-in-aid.

During a recent six-state bus tour of the economically depressed region, officials of the Appalachian Regional Commission said the idea is being actively discussed with the White House.

"In all likelihood, some form of national legislation to create a regional process of aid for all 50 states will be proposed," said John D. Whisman, the states' regional representative to the commission.

The Appalachian Regional Commission was established by Congress in 1965 to pour federal aid into the area and develop it on a coordinated, planned basis.

The key element in the ARC's strategy is its insistance on local planning and initiative before a federal grant is approved. It requires that local areas form development districts consisting of several towns and counties to receive federal aid.

Ralph Widner, the commission's executive director, said the Appalachian approach "still has some bugs in it" as a national policy.

But he commented during the tour: "So far, Appalachia is the only part of the country that is trying in its own stumbling way to determine what a national growth policy should be."

Southern Blacks Taking Advantage Of Voting Act

Their impact in the seven states covered has been felt at the polls.

According to latest available figures, 407 blacks now hold elective offices in those seven states—a vast majority of these are on local levels.

Only a handful of Negroes held elective offices in the states prior to passage of the act, and most of those were in small all-black municipalities.

Georgia, for example, has more Negroes in the state legislature than any other state except Illinois. Each has 14.

Increased Voting Power

As important to Negroes as the election of black officials is the effect their increased voting power is having on white office holders, who no longer can ignore their presence and in some cases seek their support.

Some examples of black voter registration:

In 1965, 23.5 per cent of Alabama's black voting age population was registered; now more than 61 per cent is registered; in Mississippi the jump is from 6.3 per cent to 66.5 per cent, a numerical increase from 35,000 to 281,000.

The difference reflected by the increase is expressed by Ida Holland, who was a local civil rights worker in Greenwood, Miss., in 1963.

Describing her work with local blacks at the time, she said, "I asked the people if they would like to vote. Some didn't know what voting was."

Army Vehicles Receive Damage In Firebombing

MARINETTE, Wis.—A possible fire-bombing at the site of the National Guard Armory in Marinette, early Wednesday caused minor damage to two trucks parked immediately behind the brick structure, authorities said.

They said someone apparently climbed over a fence to hurl an incendiary device.

Marinette police, FBI agents, Army National Guard officials and the state fire marshall's office are seeking a person or persons unknown who attempted to burn the military vehicles at the Armory.

According to Capt. Wayne Adler, of the National Guard, Green Bay, who is investigating the incident, there is no estimate of the damage at this time and termed what damage there was as minor.

Firemen were called to the Armory at 5:32 a. m. where they extinguished fires on two trucks. A third truck according to officials was saturated with inflamable liquid but had not been ignited. Firemen were at the scene approximately an hour.

Savage Storm Rakes Detroit

Leslie White, 54, of Wyandotte, was struck by lightning Wednesday at the Dearborn Hills Golf Course near Detroit as, police said, he and his wife were running for shelter from heavy rain.

The storm which swept through the Detroit area ripped down power lines, uprooted trees and flooded several streets. Afternoon rush hour traffic was snarled but not seriously.

Detroit Edison Co. reported major power failures as about one inch of rain deluged the metropolitan Detroit area in a 2½-hour period Wednesday afternoon.

A Grosse Pointe Park police reported 40 calls on downed wires, and Patrolman Gustave Boone said, "We can't begin to count the number of trees and limbs down."

Ann Harnett, 35, of Grosse Pointe Park, was treated at a hospital for back and arm injuries after she was hit by a falling tree limb near her home.

Detroit Edison Co. said one power failure affected about 2,500 customers in the Hamilton-Pingree-Tuxedo area on detroit's Northwest Side, another knocked out service to about 1,800 customers around Gratiot and East Grand Boulevard, on the East Side and a third affected about 6,000 persons in suburban Northville.

Market Clings To Small Advance

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market lost some of its earlier gains but clung to a narrow advance today in slow trading.

At noon, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 2.26 at 694.55, after being up earlier more than 5 points.

Advances maintained a slim lead over decliners among the issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Motors, chemicals, tobaccos, electronics and airlines were ahead, while most other categories were mixed.

One factor cited for the gains was the unusually high odd-lot short sales Wednesday. Some market sources say such a trend tends to be typical of a market bottom.

Anti-Parochiaid Unit Files 319,317 Petitions

LANSING (AP) — The Council Against Parochiaid today filed petitions bearing 319,317 signatures with the elections division of the Secretary of State's office in an attempt to put the much debated issue on the November election ballot.

If the petitions are accepted and found legally correct, the voters would decide if the state may provide money for nonpublic schools.

Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley, however, already has ruled that the form of the petitions circulated by the council is faulty because of a technicality.

The problem is, Kelley said, tha the petitions are faulty in that they fail to state the language of the constitutional provision they seek to change.

Council leaders termed the response to their petition drive "terrific". Some 246,000 valid signatures are needed to place the issue on the ballot. The petitions circulators said they topped this by some 75,000.

The powerful Michigan Education Association spearheaded the petition drive.

Terry Herndon, association executive secretary, said if the Secretary of State's office refuses to accept the petitions as valid, the group will ask the State Court of Appeals to rule that the issue should be placed on the ballot.

The petitions were left with the elections division director, Bernard Apol. He said the decision on validity will be up to the Board of State Canvassers.

The board has the final say in election matters. It similarly has been involved in fights about Daylight Savings Time.

"The filing of these petitions today will frame the issue for a court response to the issue raised by Mr. Kelley," Herndon said. "We believe that the court will declare the people must have the opportunity to speak."

Minimum Wage Hike Due Soon

LANSING (AP) — Michigan's minimum wage will go up 20 cents to $1.45 an hour effective next Wednesday.

Gov. William Milliken Wednesday signed into law a bill hiking the wage minimum from the present $1.25 an hour.

Another increase to $1.60 an hour will become effective July 1, 1971.

State Labor Department officials have estimated the hike will affect between 150,000 and 200,000 workers in the state.

Milliken termed the measure "long overdue."

"This measure will benefit the thousands of Michigan laborers who have been working at a subsistence wage level that has not kept up with the rising cost of living," he said.

"In this age of abundance, we cannot afford to ignore this growing segment of our population that is prevented from escaping poverty because they are not paid sufficiently for laborers," he said.

As first passed by the House of Representatives, the second increase would have been effective Jan. 1, 1970. The Senate changed the date to July 1 of that year and the House went along with the delay.

Concerning the peace initiative, Rogers said:

"Recent and disquieting events in the Middle East led President Nixon on April 29 to order a thorough review of all political and military aspects of the problem. That review has now been concluded.

"As a consequence of the review, the United States has undertaken a political initiative the objective of which is to encourage the parties to stop shooting and start talking under the auspices of Ambassador Jarring in accordance with the resolutions of the Security Council.

"Our objective in launching this initiative has been to encourage the parties to move towards a just and lasting peace which takes fully into account he legitimate aspirations and concerns of all governments and peoples of the area. In light of that objective, we believe it would not be useful to disclose at this time detail of the political initiatives or to discuss publicly military assistance for Israel.

"We believe that this is the time for such an initiative which we have launched directly with the parties and with other interested powers."

Appalachian Program May Be Expanded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is studying the multistate effort to develop Appalachia with an eye toward making it the framework for President Nixon's "new federalism" approach to government grants-in-aid.

During a recent six-state bus tour of the economically depressed region, officials of the Appalachian Regional Commission said the idea is being actively discussed with the White House.

"In all likelihood, some form of national legislation to create a regional process of aid for all 50 states will be proposed," said John D. Whisman, the states' regional representative to the commission.

The Appalachian Regional Commission was established by Congress in 1965 to pour federal aid into the area and develop it on a coordinated, planned basis.

The key element in the ARC's strategy is its insistance on local planning and initiative before a federal grant is approved. It requires that local areas form development districts consisting of several towns and counties to receive federal aid.

Ralph Widner, the commission's executive director, said the Appalachian approach "still has some bugs in it" as a national policy.

But he commented during the tour: "So far, Appalachia is the only part of the country that is trying in its own stumbling way to determine what a national growth policy should be."

Southern Blacks Taking Advantage Of Voting Act

Their impact in the seven states covered has been felt at the polls.

According to latest available figures, 407 blacks now hold elective offices in those seven states—a vast majority of these are on local levels.

Only a handful of Negroes held elective offices in the states prior to passage of the act, and most of those were in small all-black municipalities.

Georgia, for example, has more Negroes in the state legislature than any other state except Illinois. Each has 14.

Increased Voting Power

As important to Negroes as the election of black officials is the effect their increased voting power is having on white office holders, who no longer can ignore their presence and in some cases seek their support.

Some examples of black voter registration:

In 1965, 23.5 per cent of Alabama's black voting age population was registered; now more than 61 per cent is registered; in Mississippi the jump is from 8.3 per cent to 66.5 per cent, a numerical increase from 35,000 to 281,000.

The difference reflected by the increase is expressed by Ida Holland, who was a local civil rights worker in Greenwood, Miss., in 1963.

Describing her work with local blacks at the time, she said, "I asked the people if they would like to vote. Some didn't know what voting was."

Army Vehicles Receive Damage In Firebombing

MARINETTE, Wis.—A possible fire-bombing at the site of the National Guard Armory in Marinette, early Wednesday caused minor damage to two trucks parked immediately behind the brick structure, authorities said.

They said someone apparently climbed over a fence to hurl an incendiary device.

Marinette police, FBI agents, Army National Guard officials and the state fire marshall's office are seeking a person or persons unknown who attempted to burn the military vehicles at the Armory.

According to Capt. Wayne Adler, of the National Guard, Green Bay, who is investigating the incident, there is no estimate of the damage at this time and termed what damage there was as minor.

Firemen were called to the Armory at 5:32 a. m. where they extinguished fires on two trucks. A third truck according to officials was saturated with inflamable liquid but had not been ignited. Firemen were at the scene approximately an hour.

Savage Storm Rakes Detroit

Leslie White, 54, of Wyandotte, was struck by lightning Wednesday at the Dearborn Hills Golf Course near Detroit as, police said, he and his wife were running for shelter from heavy rain.

The storm which swept through the Detroit area ripped down power lines, uprooted trees and flooded several streets. Afternoon rush hour traffic was snarled but not seriously.

Detroit Edison Co. reported major power failures as about one inch of rain deluged the metropolitan Detroit area in a 2½-hour period Wednesday afternoon.

A Grosse Pointe Park police reported 40 calls on downed wires, and Patrolman Gustave Boone said, "We can't begin to count the number of trees and limbs down."

Ann Harnett, 35, of Grosse Pointe Park, was treated at a hospital for back and arm injuries after she was hit by a falling tree limb near her home.

Detroit Edison Co. said one power failure affected about 2,500 customers in the Hamilton-Pingree-Tuxedo area on detroit's Northwest Side, another knocked out service to about 1,800 customers around Gratiot and East Grand Boulevard, on the East Side and a third affected about 6,000 persons in suburban Northville.

Market Clings To Small Advance

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market lost some of its earlier gains but clung to a narrow advance today in slow trading.

At noon, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 2.26 at 694.55, after being up earlier more than 5 points.

Advances maintained a slim lead over decliners among the issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Motors, chemicals, tobaccos, electronics and airlines were ahead, while most other categories were mixed.

One factor cited for the gains was the unusually high odd-lot short sales Wednesday. Some market sources say such a trend tends to be typical of a market bottom.

Do you take your furniture polish with, or without?

You say you don't drink furniture polish? Well then, why do you include it when figuring your weekly "grocery" bills? Come on, admit it. We all do it. Checking out at the supermarket, we think: "Wow! I used to get 4 bags of groceries for half that!" Yes, you did. But, years ago, those bags held groceries. Today, you're buying more and more non-food items with your food. Things like pots and pans, charcoal; even fertilizer and encyclopedias are now sold in supermarkets.

Sure, inflation has forced food prices up; but, not as much as other things. From 1958 to 1968, food went up 16% while clothing was up 20%, housing 27%, medical 45%. Since 1950, farm output per man has increased 6% annually compared to 2.5% for all other industries. Americans spend only about 16.5% of income on food; the lowest in history and about half of any other country in the world! It's all due to the amazing efficiency of the American Farmer, implementing the modern farming methods encouraged and practiced by members of the Michigan Milk Producers Association.

So, next time you check your food bill, please just count the food items. Then count your blessings

Yankees Two Back

Schofield Goes From Sub To Star In Bosox Victory

By The Associated Press

The night started normally for Dick Schofield, Boston's occasional infielder. He figured on watching the game against Baltimore from his usual vantage point on the Red Sox bench. Then Mike Andrews showed up with an aching back and Schofield went from sub to star, just like that.

Starting at second base in place of Andrews Wednesday night, Schofield whacked a bases-loaded triple that tied the score in the seventh inning and then scored Boston's winning run on a sacrifice fly as the Red Sox rallied to knock off the Orioles 6-5.

Schofield, the journeyman infielder who has been cashing big league paychecks since 1953, figured Andrews' injury and his subsequent start gave him a break. "When you pinch hit the way I usually do, you only get one chance," said Schofield. "Tonight, I had four."

4 Homers For Murcer

Elsewhere in the American League Wednesday, Bobby Murcer walloped four home runs—three of them in the second game—as the New York Yankees split a doubleheader with Cleveland, losing 7-2 before winning 5-4, Oakland tripped Kansas City 5-1, Minnesota edged Milwaukee 3-2, Detroit topped Washington 3-2 in 11 innings and California swept a doubleheader with Chicago, winning the first game 3-1 and taking the second 2-1.

Schofield's triple was his first extra base hit of the season and it followed three walks sandwiched around Tom Satriano's single which had narrowed Baltimore's lead to 5-2. After his three-bagger tied the score, Schofield trotted home with Boston's winning run on Reggie Smith's sacrifice fly. The hit increased his batting average for the season to .162.

Four For Four

When it came to home runs though, nobody outdid New York's Bobby Murcer, who clouted four in his last four official at bats against the Indians in the doubleheader. A base on balls interrupted the string.

Murcer's first shot came in the ninth inning of the opener against Sam McDowell, who scattered five hits and beat Mel Stottlemyre. The Yankee ace was struck on the pitching arm by a batted ball and forced to leave the game in the fifth inning.

Cleveland promptly jumped on reliever Mike Kekich for four runs—two on Ted Uhlaender's bases-loaded single—and that was plenty for McDowell.

Murcer homered with the bases empty in the first inning of the nightcap, connected with one on in the fifth and then cracked his fourth of the day, tying the score at 4-4 in the eighth after Graig Nettles' two-run shot had given Cleveland the lead. Then Roy White doubled and scored New York's winning run on Danny Cater's single.

Winner Stan Bahnsen was the victim of a one-punch knockout by Cleveland's Vada Pinson after a tag play at home plate. Both benches emptied but peace prevailed after the incident.

Oakland Wins

Darrell Osteen, making his first American League start, stopped Kansas City for five innings and then Marcel Lachemann finished up with four strong innings of relief, combining to pitch Oakland past Kansas City.

The A's scored two unearned runs on Paul Schaal's throwing error in the first and that was all they needed. RBI-doubles by Joe Rudi and John Donaldson keyed a three-run wrapup Oakland rally in the sixth.

Tony Oliva's eighth inning single snapped a tie and moved Minnesota past Milwaukee. Oliva's two-out single scored Cesar Tovar, who was hit by a pitch and stole second.

Tom Murphy's three — hit pitching stymied Chicago as California whipped the White Sox in the first game of their doubleheader. Two of the hits off Murphy came in the first inning and Chicago didn't get another until the ninth.

The White Sox managed only two hits in the nightcap against Mel Queen, who got his first American League victory, and reliever Eddie Fisher.

Sandy Alomar hit safely in both games, extending his streak to 19 games, high in the American League this year.

McAuliffe Gets Key Hit; Tigers Edge Senators 3-2

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Detroit Tigers bested the Washington Senators 3-2 in 10 innings on a Mickey Stanley single and a Dick McAuliffe double.

McAuliffe's one out bloop double came off reliever Darold Knowles, 1-6, who had come into the game at the start of the inning. Stanley then drilled is hit to left, making reliever Fred Schermann, 2-1, the winner.

The Tigers had gone ahead 2-0 in the second off starter Casey Cox on Bill Freehan's single, a triple by Elliot Maddox and starter Earl Wilson's sacrifice fly.

But the Senators got one back in the bottom of the inning on Frank Howard's 20th home run of the season and tied it in the fourth as Aurelio Rodriguez slammed his 11th homer.

The win came after the Baltimore Orioles 6-5 loss to Boston was posted on the scoreboard. The Detroit win coupled with the Birds loss trims the Baltimore lead to eight games over the AL East third place Bengals.

Tom Timmerman posted his seventh save of the year in his reliever role.

Karras Fails As Skydiver

Karras was scheduled to make his first parachute jump at 3 p.m. as a publicity stunt for the Alex Karras Cystic Fibrosis Golf Tournament at Shores Acres Golf Club.

At three O'clock, the jump was rescheduled for 4:30 because of threatening weather. The new time came and went with the 245-pound Karras still on the ground.

Finally, at 5 p.m., five professional jumpers landed on the first fairway as the earth-bound Karras looked on.

"I didn't like the wind," said the burly Karras. "That's the only thing that stopped me. I guess you could call it chickening out. What else can I say."

Jolly Roger rallied back in the fourth to cut the gap to 4-2 when JimBourdeau, Marty Oslund and Bob Bourdeau all singled. In the fifth the Merchants chased Mammy Bourdeau from the mound when they scored four runs. Jug Bourdeau came in to relieve Mammy for Jolly Roger and gave up only one run, that a homer by Corriveau in the sixth inning that put the Merchants out front 9-2.

With Escanaba Jaycee Little League tournament team practice scheduled to get under way the week of July 6th, Little League officials announced that Friday was the deadline to turn in all soap sale receipts. They also indicated that the sale had been so successful that the operation of the "rookie league" which will be run in conjunction with the tournament team practice has been assured.

One game away from the second half championship, the Lions Little Leaguers will be out to wrap it up tonight when they face Credit Union at the Little League Field at 6 o'clock. Kevin Cutler backed up his one hit pitching performance last night with three hits in three trips to the plate as the Lions belted the Bankers 14 to 2.

The Bankers, one of the two teams to beat the Lions this year, staged another of their 10 run innings against the Eagles earlier in the week, but to no avail as the Birds won 17 to 12 in a game that they rapped out 19 hits in eight innings.

Yankees Two Back

Schofield Goes From Sub To Star In Bosox Victory

By The Associated Press

The night started normally for Dick Schofield, Boston's occasional infielder. He figured on watching the game against Baltimore from his usual vantage point on the Red Sox bench. Then Mike Andrews showed up with an aching back and Schofield went from sub to star, just like that.

Starting at second base in place of Andrews Wednesday night, Schofield whacked a bases-loaded triple that tied the score in the seventh inning and then scored Boston's winning run on a sacrifice fly as the Red Sox rallied to knock off the Orioles 6-5.

Schofield, the journeyman infielder who has been cashing big league paychecks since 1953, figured Andrews' injury and his subsequent start gave him a break. "When you pinch hit the way I usually do, you only get one chance," said Schofield. "Tonight, I had four."

4 Homers For Murcer

Elsewhere in the American League Wednesday, Bobby Murcer walloped four home runs—three of them in the second game—as the New York Yankees split a doubleheader with Cleveland, losing 7-2 before winning 5-4, Oakland tripped Kansas City 5-1, Minnesota edged Milwaukee 3-2, Detroit topped Washington 3-2 in 11 innings and California swept a doubleheader with Chicago, winning the first game 3-1 and taking the second 2-1.

Schofield's triple was his first extra base hit of the season and it followed three walks sandwiched around Tom Satriano's single which had narrowed Baltimore's lead to 5-2. After his three-bagger tied the score, Schofield trotted home with Boston's winning run on Reggie Smith's sacrifice fly. The hit increased his batting average for the season to .162.

Four For Four

When it came to home runs though, nobody outdid New York's Bobby Murcer, who clouted four in his last four official at bats against the Indians in the doubleheader. A base on balls interrupted the string.

Murcer's first shot came in the ninth inning of the opener against Sam McDowell, who scattered five hits and beat Mel Stottlemyre. The Yankee ace was struck on the pitching arm by a batted ball and forced to leave the game in the fifth inning.

Cleveland promptly jumped on reliever Mike Kekich for four runs—two on Ted Uhlaender's bases-loaded single—and that was plenty for McDowell.

Murcer homered with the bases empty in the first inning of the nightcap, connected with one on in the fifth and then cracked his fourth of the day, tying the score at 4-4 in the eighth after Graig Nettles' two-run shot had given Cleveland the lead. Then Roy White doubled and scored New York's winning run on Danny Cater's single.

Winner Stan Bahnsen was the victim of a one-punch knockout by Cleveland's Vada Pinson after a tag play at home plate. Both benches emptied but peace prevailed after the incident.

Oakland Wins

Darrell Osteen, making his first American League start, stopped Kansas City for five innings and then Marcel Lachemann finished up with four strong innings of relief, combining to pitch Oakland past Kansas City.

The A's scored two unearned runs on Paul Schaal's throwing error in the first and that was all they needed. RBI-doubles by Joe Rudi and John Donaldson keyed a three-run wrapup Oakland rally in the sixth.

Tony Oliva's eighth inning single snapped a tie and moved Minnesota past Milwaukee. Oliva's two-out single scored Cesar Tovar, who was hit by a pitch and stole second.

Tom Murphy's three — hit pitching stymied Chicago as California whipped the White Sox in the first game of their doubleheader. Two of the hits off Murphy came in the first inning and Chicago didn't get another until the ninth.

The White Sox managed only two hits in the nightcap against Mel Queen, who got his first American League victory, and reliever Eddie Fisher.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Detroit Tigers bested the Washington Senators 3-2 in 10 innings on a Mickey Stanley single and a Dick McAuliffe double.

McAuliffe's one out bloop double came off reliever Darold Knowles, 1-6, who had come into the game at the start of the inning. Stanley then drilled is hit to left, making reliever Fred Schermann, 2-1, the winner.

The Tigers had gone ahead 2-0 in the second off starter Casey Cox on Bill Freehan's single, a triple by Elliot Maddox and starter Earl Wilson's sacrifice fly.

But the Senators got one back in the bottom of the inning on Frank Howard's 20th home run of the season and tied it in the fourth as Aurelio Rodriguez slammed his 11th homer.

The win came after the Baltimore Orioles 6-5 loss to Boston was posted on the scoreboard. The Detroit win coupled with the Birds loss trims the Baltimore lead to eight games over the AL East third place Bengals.

Tom Timmerman posted his seventh save of the year in his reliever role.

Karras Fails As Skydiver

Karras was scheduled to make his first parachute jump at 3 p.m. as a publicity stunt for the Alex Karras Cystic Fibrosis Golf Tournament at Shores Acres Golf Club.

At three O'clock, the jump was rescheduled for 4:30 because of threatening weather. The new time came and went with the 245-pound Karras still on the ground.

Finally, at 5 p.m., five professional jumpers landed on the first fairway as the earth-bound Karras looked on.

"I didn't like the wind," said the burly Karras. "That's the only thing that stopped me. I guess you could call it chickening out. What else can I say."

Steve Owens Worried About Going 'Big Time'

DETROIT (AP) — Heisman-trophy winner Steve Owens who got $200,000 for signing a Detroit Lions contract is the first to concede his record-breaking college football career won't mean a thing when he goes up against the pros this fall.

"I have not done a thing in professional football so nobody has anything to fear from me and I have only one job — to play pro ball well enough so the other teams will respect me, "Owens told a news conference Wednesday.

Last To Sign

He was the last of the Lions 15 draft choices to ink his contract and he shared the spotlight with two other Lion newcomers... defensive end Jim Mitchell of Virginia State and Ray Parson of Minnesota, an end, at Lions headquarters.

Owens signed a four-year $200,000 pact with the Lions at the time of the National Football League draft last year. Sources close to the team said it contains some bonus clauses but that it was well below the $400,000 the Lions paid to get Nick Eddy from Notre Dame and $300,000 for Mel Farr from Southern California in recent years.

Owens, who practically rewrote the NCAA record book for running in his three years varsity career at the University of Oklahoma, was the first to admit he did not expect to run wild in pro ranks.

"I feel that running inside would be my best bet, for I do not have the blazing speed of a Mel Farr or Nick Eddy and if the Lions give me the word, I plan to run inside," he said.

"I know very little about the Lions but I hear they have some fine runners and my goal will be to try to break into the starting lineup," he said after a brief session with Lions general manager Russ Thomas at which the final details of the contract were agreed upon.

Ban For Daylight

"In college, I was the type of player who lined up about six yards back and ran for daylight but I'm not going to be running over anybody in pro ball so I will have to try and go around them," he said.

Owens, who gained over 100 yards in each of 17 consecutive games at Oklahoma wound up his college career just short of 4,000 yards — 3,867 to be exact —totaling up to more yardage than any college player ever had run before. He picked up 56 touchdowns along the way as he broke seven NCAA rushing records and nine Big Eight conference marks.

Owens admited he was a bit disappointed when he did not go until the 19th draft choice last year, despite his record smashing rushing.

Owens and his wife, Barbara, whom he met while they were seventh graders in his hometown of Miami, Okla., were jubilant about one thing Wednesday—their success in finding a home for the football season.

"This is Barbara's first trip to Detroit and we were reconciled to doing a lot of shopping around and looking for an apartment when we learned from one of the Lions that Earl Morrall had a house he wanted to rent," Owens explained.

"I never have met Morrall but we hurried out to his Bloomfield Hills home and his wife was very kind and showed us all around. We took it on the spot for four months beginning August 15th and our housing problems are solved."

Morrall To Colts

Morrall former Michigan State and Detroit Lions star is slated to report to the Baltimore Colts training camp in mid-August.

The 212-pound Owens, who has his sights set on getting his weight up to his running best potential of 225 pounds by season opener, handled newsmen's questions like a veteran.

He got a chuckle when he said, "I've never met Alex Karras but I hear he is rough on rookies at preseason training camp" That was a reference to the fact that Karras and other Lions veterans put newcomers through a bit of hazing, with requirements such as one the new players sing their college songs.

"I don't have much of a voice," Owens said.

SUMMER JOB — David Eisenhower, 22, son-in-law of President Nixon pauses at door of the baseball Senators office in Washington, where he has a summer job. "He's just a handyman," said wife Julie. He's just working wherever he is needed." The Senators could use team help.

Clay Softens, May Fight In Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — Cassius Clay's 3½ - year rest from the prize - fighting ring appeared nearing an end today as groups in both Michigan and Washington moved to clear the way for a heavyweight title fight between the fiery ex-champ and Joe Frazier, now recognized as the world champ.

A fight promotion group, represented by former Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanagh, confirmed Wednesday they are trying to stage a heavyweight title fight between Clay, also known as Muhammad Ali, and Frazier.

There remained the possibility, meanwhile, that Clay might meet Frazier in Seattle this September. The Washington Boxing Commission, which meets Friday, will consider licensing Clay. A group of Tacoma men filed formal application for the license Monday.

Clay held the world champion title until after his conviction for failure to report for Army duty. His case is being appealed.

Both Michigans Gov. William G. Milliken and State Boxing Commissioner Chuck Davey have indicated they would not oppose efforts to place the fight in Detroit. A spokesman for the governor said if all legal technicalities are cleared, and Davey approves the fight, the governor would not stand in the way.

Davey said he could make no recommendation for the fight until formal papers, applying for sanctioning of the match, had been filed. "As far as I know, as things stand now," he said, "Clay would be allowed to fight here."

An attorney for Clay in Tacoma, Neil Hoff, said Clay's attorneys had authorized him to push for a fight in Seattle. One member of the Washington Boxing Commission has stated his support for the license approval. Chairman Harry Lynch opposes the move. The third and deciding member has not said what he would do, but there have been reports he is willing to grant the license.

A source in New York, who refused to give permission for use of his name, said the terms, already worked out once for a proposed Texas fight last December, would call for Clay and Frazier to receive $300,000 each as a guarantee and an equal percentage of the gate and all auxiliary rights.

The last time Clay fought was March 22, 1967, when he knocked out Zora Folley in the seventh round. Clay, unbeaten as a professional uncapped a wave of public controversy when on refusing induction into the Army, he said, "I ain't got nothin' against no Vietcong."

Red Hot Mets Knock Cubs From First Place

By The Associated Press

The New York Mets cleaned up in Chicago and the Cincinnati Reds moved out of Crosley Field on a tidy note, leaving a slightly ruffled Leo Durocher and Juan Marichal in their wakes.

The Mets captured the National League East lead Wednesday, knocking Durochers' Cubs out of the top spot by sweeping a doubleheader, 9-5 and 6-1, while Johnny Bench and Lee May ripped consecutive eighth-inning homers off Marichal in the Reds' 5-4 triumph over San Francisco in the final game after 58 years at Crosley field.

The defending world champion Mets took over first place from the Cubs by one-half game after taking their fourth straight in the five-game set which concludes today. It was Chicago's sixth loss in a row and dropped them from the lead for the first time since April 22.

"What can you do," said Durocher, the Cubs' skipper. "The pitching is terrible and we can't hit."

Durocher shook up the Cubs, benching slump-ridden Ron Santo and using Ernie Banks only as a pinch hitter but still couldn't stop the Mets fine pitching and hot-hitting.

Tom Seaver hurled the first game, tossing a seven-hitter, upping his record to 11-5 and striking out 11 for a major-league leading 151.

Noland Ryan, 5-5, gave up a leadoff single to Don Kessinger and then held the Cubs hitless through seven innings before leaving with a blister on the middle finger of his throwing hand.

Play Good Ballgame

Tommie Agee knocked in three runs and Cleon Jones four in the opener for the Mets and Wayne Garrett, who homered in the opener, had a pair of RBIs in the nightcap. Banks had a three-run pinch homer for the Cubs in the first game.

"We certainly didn't make the Cubs the target," said Gil Hodges, the Mets manager. "But if you play good baseball and keep winning you know you can catch anybody. Our boys are playing real good baseball —getting hits, runs, pitching and defense."

The Mets have won nine of their last 11 starts.

Bench ripped his 25th homer of the season, tying the score at 4-4 off Marichal, who dropped to 3-7 this year, before May socked his 19th of the season off the Giants' right-hander, who held a 19-9 lifetime mark over the Reds before the game.

The Reds drew 28,027 for the finale before moving on to Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium on June 30.

Great Way To Go

"It was a great way to go out," Bench said. It's just as though it had been written in a script."

When the lights finally went out at Crosley Field, 4,543 regular season game had been played there since its opener on April 11, 1912. The stadium was also the first in the majors to have lights and the first night game was played there on May 24, 1935.

Joe Moeller, a five-year veteran, hurled his first major league shutout, blanking the Braves on six hits as the Dodgers made it three in a row over Atlanta.

Carl Morton fired a three-hitter and the Expos exploded for six fifth inning runs off loser Chris Short of the Phils. John Bateman doubled and homered for Montreal.

Al Oliver's 11th inning single scored Gene Alley with the winning run in the Pirates come from behind triumph. Pittsburgh had tied it at 3-3 in the ninth on Bill Mazeroski's ground out. Richie Allen had a two-run blast for the Cards, his 20th of the season.

Jim Wynn slammed a three-run homer and tight relief pitching by Jim Ray helped the Astros to a three-game sweep of the Padres. Clarence Gaston and Bob Barton slugged homers for San Diego.

Steve Owens Worried About Going 'Big Time'

DETROIT (AP) — Heisman-trophy winner Steve Owens who got $200,000 for signing a Detroit Lions contract is the first to concede his record-breaking college football career won't mean a thing when he goes up against the pros this fall.

"I have not done a thing in professional football so nobody has anything to fear from me and I have only one job — to play pro ball well enough so the other teams will respect me, "Owens told a news conference Wednesday.

Last To Sign

He was the last of the Lions 15 draft choices to ink his contract and he shared the spotlight with two other Lion newcomers... defensive end Jim Mitchell of Virginia State and Ray Parson of Minnesota, an end, at Lions headquarters.

Owens signed a four-year $200,000 pact with the Lions at the time of the National Football League draft last year. Sources close to the team said it contains some bonus clauses but that it was well below the $400,000 the Lions paid to get Nick Eddy from Notre Dame and $300,000 for Mel Farr from Southern California in recent years.

Owens, who practically rewrote the NCAA record book for running in his three years varsity career at the University of Oklahoma, was the first to admit he did not expect to run wild in pro ranks.

"I feel that running inside would be my best bet, for I do not have the blazing speed of a Mel Farr or Nick Eddy and if the Lions give me the word, I plan to run inside," he said.

"I know very little about the Lions but I hear they have some fine runners and my goal will be to try to break into the starting lineup," he said after a brief session with Lions general manager Russ Thomas at which the final details of the contract were agreed upon.

Ran For Daylight

"In college, I was the type of player who lined up about six yards back and ran for daylight but I'm not going to be running over anybody in pro ball so I will have to try and go around them," he said.

Owens, who gained over 100 yards in each of 17 consecutive games at Oklahoma wound up his college career just short of 4,000 yards — 3,867 to be exact —totaling up to more yardage than any college player ever had run before. He picked up 56 touchdowns along the way as he broke seven NCAA rushing records and nine Big Eight conference marks.

Owens admited he was a bit disappointed when he did not go until the 19th draft choice last year, despite his record smashing rushing.

Owens and his wife, Barbara, whom he met while they were seventh graders in his hometown of Miami, Okla., were jubilant about one thing Wednesday—their success in finding a home for the football season.

"This is Barbara's first trip to Detroit and we were reconciled to doing a lot of shopping around and looking for an apartment when we learned from one of the Lions that Earl Morrall had a house he wanted to rent," Owens explained.

"I never have met Morrall but we hurried out to his Bloomfield Hills home and his wife was very kind and showed us all around. We took it on the spot for four months beginning August 15th and our housing problems are solved."

Morrall To Colts

Morrall former Michigan State and Detroit Lions star is slated to report to the Baltimore Colts training camp in mid-August.

The 212-pound Owens, who has his sights set on getting his weight up to his running best potential of 225 pounds by season opener, handled newsmen's questions like a veteran.

He got a chuckle when he said, "I've never met Alex Karras but I hear he is rough on rookies at preseason training camp" That was a reference to the fact that Karras and other Lions veterans put newcomers through a bit of hazing, with requirements such as one the new players sing their college songs.

"I don't have much of a voice," Owens said.

Meat-Packing Plant Investigation Asked

WASHINGTON AP) — A congressional watchdog report charging filthy, rat-ridden meat-packing plants were allowed to stay in production by U.S. inspectors has brought a senator's demand for a probe of the Agriculture Department itself.

The report by the General Accounting Office said unsanitary conditions or contaminated meat were found in 44 of 48 Midwestern packing plants inspected last year. Two of the offending plants are now closed and the others have improved substantially, the GAO said.

It blamed continuance of the conditions over a period of years on lax inspection and faltering enforcement by the department's Consumer and Marketing Service, which is responsible for certifying the nation's 3,200 federally inspected packing plants to receive federal grading services.

GAO investigators said they found carcasses contaminated with feces and hair, observed flies, cockroaches and rats, noted the use of dirty equipment and the contamination of meat by rust, by cooling fluids and by plaster, paint and dirt.

The report appeared to substantially confirm charges consumer advocate Ralph Nader made more than a year ago to the government operations subcommittee headed by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn.

Both the GAO and the Agriculture Department said that since the GAO survey began, enforcement has been tightened. The department said no meat is now known to be sold from unsanitary plants.

Ribicoff, who requested the GAO report, declared: "These are serious charges against certain meat packers who provide prepared meat for millions of Americans. . .We must find out why the Agriculture Department is unable to carry out its directives in the supervision and regulation of federal meat quality standards."

Clearly, a fullscale investigation of the Department of Agriculture is called for, Ribicoff said.

The GAO investigators said they had been told the department's consumer service had for years accepted inadequate sanitation efforts by plant managers, that many of its own inspectors were unwilling to incur the anger of plant officials by insisting regulations be followed and that high officials in the service itself failed to support their inspectors' attempts to correct the situation.

"After our visits to some of the plants, C&MS personnel adopted more stringent measures, including suspension of inspection serivces from plant areas having numerous sanitation deficiencies," the GAO probers said.

Such action bars a plant from selling meat products in interstate commerce.

In separate statements, both the Agriculture Department and the GAO's head, U.S. Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats, said the inspected plants represented a relatively small number of plants and did not necessarily represent the situation in the entire industry.

Staats said plants chosen for inspection were taken from previous reports of unsanitary conditions.

Homeowners' Mortgage Law Remains Intact

LANSING (AP) — The Michigan House voted Wednesday to continue exempting homeowners' mortgages and land contracts for another year from the state's century-old usury law which sets a 7-per-cent ceiling on interest rates.

The 79-20 vote to extend an experiment aimed at making home loans more competitive with other lending rates came after little discussion during a lull in debate on higher education appropriations, state controls over college autonomy and campus unrest.

The open market on home construction loans expires Dec. 31 unless extended or repealed by the Legislature. Increase of the prime lending rate to 8½ per cent last year led the Legislature to authorize freeing mortgage rates in an effort to stimulate housing sales. Bankers subsequently reported rates climbed to 8-8⅜ per cent.

A house amendment offered jointly by Speaker William A. Ryan, D-Detroit, and GOP Minority Leader Robert E. Waldron of Grosse Pointe, curbs the measure by setting a new expiration date of Dec. 31, 1971.

The house version also deletes a loophole added by the senate to free financially speculative second mortgages from the 7-per cent limitation of the usury law.

The bill now returns to the Senate which has the option of accepting House changes or calling for a joint conference committee to work out a compromise.

Both versions of the bill would continue to bar lenders' holding back loan principal as a security deposit, deducting discounts or "points" for account service and loan insurance or charging more than 1 per cent interest for quick "prepayment" of the loan within three years.

In effect, however, those restrictions are made unnecessary by the latitude to charge any rate the market will bear.

Two Separate Capsules Used In July Draft

WASHINGTON (AP) — The July 1 draft lottery will use two separate sets of capsules to scramble the dates of the year and the draft lottery numbers simultaneously, Draft Director Curtis W. Tarr announced today.

A mathematician with Tarr said the double scrambling is capable of producing an astronomical number of different combinations totaling 625 followed by 1,556 zeros.

One of those combinations will become the order in which men turning 19 this year will be subject to the draft in 1971.

Tarr described the new lottery procedure in a news conference, explaining that it utilizes both the computer and the physical mixing process, to satisfy the concern of those who see advantages or disadvantages in either method.

The complex process involves the preparation by mathematical means of random lists which will be used to put the capsules into their containers, the spinning of these containers to mix the capsules even more, and finally the drawing of capsules by more than 100 representatives of the Selective Service System's Youth Advisory Committees from throughout the country.

The extreme caution shown at every step appeared a far cry from the method used last December when the dates of the year—representing birthdays of draft age men—were placed in capsules, poured into a bowl and then drawn out one by one.

House Uses Funds As Lever Against College Dissidents

LANSING (AP) — Using its power of the purse to strike back at unrest and free-wheeling campus administrations, the Michigan House has voted to force colleges to expel student vandals and send straying teachers back to their classrooms or face budget penalties.

The election-year demonstration of legislative muscle came late Wednesday night as the House capped a day of debate by passing a $355.3 million higher education appropriation on a bare 57-39 roll call.

The bill, sent back to the Senate for action on House amendments, contained a $6.18-million increase over Senate spending proposals that had cut $5.8 million from Gov. William G. Milliken's original appropriation request.

Bill Goes To Senate

In all, the massive, higher education appropriation now proposes a $42.1 million annual increase in the cost of supporting the state's 15 major colleges and universities and 29 two-year community, colleges.

The subject of ever mounting costs, however, was relegated to a virtual afterthought in debate that saw these developments:

—A 62-34 vote to require schools receiving state funds to expel any student "who causes wilful damage to public property on a campus or other facility of a college or university."

Wayne Fund Cut

—A 70-27 vote to cut $93,000 from Wayne State University's $46.08 million appropriation because of the administration's failure to curb publication by the campus newspaper, "The South End," of articles emphasizing profanity and sexual perversion.

—Adoption of a Senate-passed priviso that graduate faculty members spend at least 10 hours a week in classroom instruction that undergraduate faculty teach 12 hours a week and community college instructors at least 16 hours.

—A one-year's warning to junior college administrators to curb tuition and spending increases or face state-imposed tuition scales. The 12-months grace period came over the objection of majority Democrats who wanted to put the tuition controls into effect with the start of the new appropriation period on July 1.

Funds Higher

A total of $288.1 million would be earmarked for the 15 major colleges next year, an increase of $35.8 million over this year's spending, $5.08 million more than the Senate has proposed.

The 29 community colleges would receive $47.3 million, an increase of $1.29 million over Senate appropriations but $3.2 million less than this year's support.

Rep. James Farnsworth, Plainwell Republican who is the ranking minority member on the House Appropriations Committee, sought to cut allocations for the major colleges.

"It's too much money," he said of the proposed $6 million increase. "These people don't need to be rewarded."

It was understood that the rationale of the increase, voted through by majority Democrats, was to gain bargaining leverage with Senate Conference Committee delegates.

Vandals Target

The amendment requiring expulsion of student vandals was sponsored by Rep. Joyce Symons, D-Allen Park. Mrs. Symons proposed a total of seven other restrictive amendments that were either defeated or withdrawn. One would have forbidden students to have time off from classes this fall to work in pre-election campaigns.

The $93,900 cut in the Wayne State Budget was proposed by Rep. Joseph P. Swallow, R-Alpena, and had the enthusiastic support of Appropriations Committee Chairman William Copeland, D-Wyandotte, who said Wayne Students threatened retaliation against any legislative cut in the school's budget.

Swallow, who failed a year ago to delete state funds for university support of the radical campus newspaper, said he was not attempting to curb free speech or freedom of the press.

Blasts Student Paper

"My amendment is only aimed at the state's share of what I feel is this obnoxious newspaper," Swallow said. "They (the administration) promised to clean it up, and they didn't. Each edition is thoroughly laced with four-letter words."

The House also voted 74-18 for another Swallow amendment that would forbid any university to set enrollment criteria based on race, national origin or religious preference.

That was understood to be an effort to curb a controversial decision by the University of Michigan to adopt a 10-per-cent Negro admission quota. The policy was announced by the university's board of regents earlier this year after a period of campus demonstrations led by black students.

Hassle Likely Over C5 Planes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House report sure to spark new controversy over the costly C5 giant transport supports the military's bid for 120 of the planes to provide airlift capability for "one and a half wars."

A House Armed Services Committee report says the Pentagon should complete the original purchase order of 120 planes or devise a plan to achieve the same airlift capability with 81 C5s and smaller, supplementary aircraft.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird cut back the original purchase order to 81 transports in the face of congressional criticism over the spiraling cost.

The report, drafted by a subcommittee after extensive closed-door hearings on military airlift needs for the next decade, was expected to be released today.

Gen. John Ryan, Air Force Chief of Staff, told the subcommittee the joint chiefs are still unanimously recommending 120 C 5s —s i x squadrons—even though they support Laird's cut to 81 for budgetary reasons.

Strategy plans for maximum U.S. war commitments—an all-out war in Europe or Asia and a half war in some other trouble spot at the same time—cannot be met with 81 Cts, Ryan testified. He said 120 would be adequate.

Laird has told Congress 81 C5s are enough to meet "foreseeable contingencies."

Nationalizing Railroads May Become Necessary, Volpe Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transportation Secretary John Volpe has told Congress the government might be forced to nationalize the country's railroads if federal aid is withheld from the Penn Central and other lines.

"If we do nothing, and all else fails, we only have the option of takeover of the railroads by the federal government," Volpe said Wednesday while testifying in support of a proposal to provide $750 million in emergency aid for the railways.

He told the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee that the Penn Central, which has filed a petition for reorganization under the bankruptcy laws, was badly managed and any government aid would be made at high risk. But changes of the firm, the nation's sixth largest corporation recovering without federal help is a gamble at best he said.

In Chicago, meanwhile, Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy told the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations the government should have made a "desperate" effort to save the railroad. But he said insufficient time was available to solve the firm's problems. He said other companies might face similar problems because "corporations operate with less cash than they used to."

Reluctant Response

Committee response to the proposal was reluctant and sometimes angry.

Rep. James Harvey, R-Mich., questioned the aid package on grounds it could set a precedent that would force the federal government to put financial "life nets" under other transportation industries.

Undersecretary Charles Baker said the airline and trucking industries were not in the same trouble as the railroads, but "the government does have the responsibility to see they remain operating."

Volpe said the Penn Central probably would receive the first $200 million of the administration's $750 million standby loan proposal.

The cash - stricken carrier would need that sum to stay in business for the remainder of the year, he said. The railroad reorganized under bankruptcy laws over the weekend after an original administration plan to guarantee a $200 million loan to the firm collapsed under adverse congressional reaction.

Penn Central's management came under strong criticism.

"Yes," Volpe said.

Rep. Brock Adams, D-Wash., asked whether management acted wisely last year in its decision to pay $43 million in dividends in the face of a financial crisis.

"No," said Volpe's deputy, James Beggs.

Management Rapped

Rep. J. J. Pickle, D-Tex., asked whether the Penn-Central was poorly managed.

"Anytime," Volpe said, "a corporation loses money I generally think it is poorly managed."

Adams, noting that he only looked at the matter briefly, said it was his impression "the investors have been getting their money out of the company while the company was starving for working capital."

Essential To Defense

Rep. Fred Rooney, D-Pa., said he would favor some sort of government takeover of rails. He called railroads "a monopoly whose only response to competition has been cutting service or raising rates."

Volpe said the railroads are essential for defense and the nation's economic health. To let the Penn Central cease operating would have dire effects on the whole economic system, he said, since 70 percent of all freight cars move over the company's rails at one time or another during a year.

Volpe added that during the next 10 years the nation's railroads would run up an estimated $12 billion deficit to make capital improvements.

Southern Blacks Taking Advantage Of Voting Act

By TED SIMMONS

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — In the five years of its existence, the Voting Rights Act of 1965 has helped Southern blacks fashion a political punch that is leaving an indelible mark on the politics and politicians of the area.

The act, hailed by then President Lyndon B. Johnson as a "triumph for freedom as huge as any victory on any battlefield," was recently extended for another five years by President Nixon.

Some Examples

Here are some examples of black political gains since the act was passed:

Nearly 1 million Negroes in the South have been added to voter registration rolls.

More than 400 blacks now hold elective office in the seven states affected—Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Virginia and 39 counties in North Carolina—as compared to a mere handful prior to passage of the act.

Seeks Governor's Post

And in each of these states Negroes are an increasing factor at the ballot box as a result of political awareness and activity.

In Georgia, a Negro asking whites to "join me in a new political emphasis" is running for governor for the first time in this century, and is conceded enough votes by the leading candidates to force a runoff in the Democratic primary in September.

The candidate, attorney C. B. King of Albany, is joined by blacks seeking such high offices as lieutenant governor and secretary of state.

In Alabama, a Negro civil rights lawyer this year became the first man of his race to win nomination to the legislature since Reconstruction.

In Virginia, blacks were elected to city councils for the first time in such racially conservative areas as Lynchburg, Emporia and Burkeville.

In North Carolina, where no Negro had offered for sheriff since Reconstruction, six ran this year in May primaries. All were defeated—but two took their white opponents into runoffs.

Forces Runoff

The increased power of the black vote in the South is attributed to a very large degree to the Voting Rights Act.

The 1965 bill abolished literacy tests in states where less than half the adult population was registered or voted in November 1964. It authorized the U.S. attorney general to dispatch federal voting examiners when and where he believed they were needed. And it provided criminal penalties for intimidating anyone trying to vote.

Legislation Halted

Many advocates call it the most meaningful civil rights legislation passed.

Opponents call it discriminatory, illegal and unconstitutional.

Black leaders, however, have a different criticism of the act. They contend that it is not strong enough and that it has not been sufficiently enforced.

Advocates of stronger enforcement claim that in the 556 counties in the seven states covered by the act, federal registrars have been sent into only 64. Some black leaders contend President Nixon is less than enthusiastic about enforcing civil rights.

Registration Aided

Although federal registrars have registered only about 158,000 Negroes, the act is credited with helping in the registration of almost one million, according to the Southern Regional Council's Voter Education Project, acknowledged to be the

Radical Predicts 'Bloodbath' On 4th

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Honor America Day gala scheduled for July 4th could turn into "America's most massive red-white-and-blue bloodbath," says a group headed by Chicago 7 defendant Rennie Davis.

"The demonstration is billed as nonpartisan and nonpolitical when in fact it is not," said the Emergency Committee to Prevent a July 4th Fist Fight.

The group said the event would amount to an unscheduled Republican convention and invite a violent confrontation with 15,000 young people Davis predicted would show up for a planned July 4th "Smoke-in" pot party on the grounds of the Washington Monument.

Davis and 15 others went to the Honor America Day headquarters Wednesday in an attempt to discuss the program, get themselves included on the committee and gain office space but were told no one in authority was present.

They said the current plans, calling for appearances by comedian Bob Hope and evangelist Billy Graham, offer nothing for young people and the city's majority Negro population.

In a statement, the group recommended the Honor America Day committee revise its program in an effort to make "the young and old, black and white...feel more at ease, and...prevent July 4th from becoming a national disaster."

Stop Shooting, Start Talks, Rogers Tells Mideast Foes

RESCUERS ARE hoisted to reach one of several workers trapped by hanging girder on the Maine-New Hampshire interstate high level auto bridge at Kittery, Maine. Four workers were killed in the accident. (AP Wirephoto)

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers announced today what he termed a major new U.S. Mideast peacs initiative aimed at getting the Arabs and Israelis "to stop shooting and start talking."

Broadly Worded Plan

The essence of the still-secret U.S. plan, it was understood, was a broadly worded proposal to Egypt, Jordan and Israel for a cease-fire of at least 90 days during which U.N. mediator Gunnar Jarring would start negotiations on the basis of these commitments by the opposing parties:

—Egypt and Jordan would pledge themselves to the principle of peace with Israel and acknowledge her right to exist within secure borders.

—Israel in return would pledge withdrawal from Arab lands she conquered in the 1967 war.

Won't Give Detail

Rogers announced the "major political initiative" at a news conference, but he refused to go into details of the new U.S. diplomatic effort. Nor would he say what the Nixon administration's decision is on Israel's plea for 125 modern jet war planes.

Rogers said because of the importance and sensitive nature of the behind-the-scenes approach to the Middle East opponents, it would be harmful to talk at this time about U.S. military assistance to Israel.

However he restated what he said was the U.S. national interest in "the sovereignty, independence, the territorial integrity of Israel."

He described as "a new factor and a very serious factor" the introduction of the new Soviet SAM3 antiaircraft missiles in Egypt and the flying of aircraft there by Soviet pilots.

But he added: "We're not inclined to think that Israel is at the moment unable to support itself militarily."

Other Commitments

Speaking to newsmen in advance of his Sunday departure on a two-week Asian trip, the U.S. secretary of state also said:

—The main aim of U.S. air operations in Cambodia, which will continue after U.S. troops withdraw by June 30, is "to protect Americans in South Vietnam."

He said obviously the U.S. air attacks designed to interdict enemy troops and material in Cambodia will at times "benefit the forces of Cambodia." But the policy is not to have direct U.S. military involvement to support Cambodia's Lon Nol regime, he said.

—President Nixon is planning to name a U.S. ambassador to Cambodia. Hitherto a charge d'affaires has been in charge of the U.S. diplomatic mission at Phnom Penh.

Agreement Sought

—There "is reason to hope that we can reach an agreement" at the U.S.-Soviet strategic arms limitation (SALT) talks at Vienna. A limited accord might be "reached in the near future"—he declined to say just when. But if only a limited initial agreement is reached, he said, more arms curb agreements would be sought thereafter.

—No decision has been made yet on what support the United States might give to Thailand for Thai military operations in Cambodia.

—Completing his Asian trip, he will return to the United States by way of London, where he will

Agnew Praises Nixon's Decision On Cambodia

Addressing a Republican fund-raising dinner while antiwar demonstrators clashed with police outside the hall Wednesday night, Agnew described the Cambodian venture as "the most successful military operation of the entire war."

Police said they booked 25 persons from a crowd of about 400 on charges including disturbance, resisting arrest, assault and obscene language.

Richardson Faces Knotty Problems As HEW Director

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elliott L. Richardson has officially transferred his diplomatic skills to the troubled Department of Health, Education and Welfare where he faces immediate, knotty problems.

The former undersecretary of state, was sworn in as the No. 1 man at HEW Wednesday and was immediately faced with problems endemic to HEW—civil rights and consumer protection, among others.

HEW civil rights officials, for example, have readied a letter for the secretary's signature calling on southern districts to end in-school discrimination as well as segregation this fall.

Officials of the Food and Drug Administration will urge Richardson to modify a controversial department decision to allow cyclamate-sweetened foods to remain on grocery shelves despite possible health hazards.

The American Medical Association, a powerful interest group with which all HEW secretaries must wrestle, voiced displeasure this week over recent FDA actions on oral contraceptives and certain medications for diabetics.

The AMA is expected to insist that Richardson rescind the FDA requirement of packaged inserts warning women about possible hazards associated with birth control pills.

Organized medicine is also expected to protest what doctors see as their exclusion from crucial decisions on drug effectiveness and safety.

Richardson has so far brought only one new staff aid and two secretaries to HEW.

He must decide whom to keep from the team assembled by Robert H. Finch, his predecessor and now a White House counselor.

Farmer, an assistant secretary and a one-time head of the Congress of Racial Equality, has publicly accused President Nixon of failing to understand and deal effectively with problems facing black Americans.

Newspaper Sold To Satisfy Suit

CINCINNATI (AP) — An antitrust action against the E. W. Scripps Co. has led to the sale of the Cincinnati Enquirer.

An investment group headed by Enquirer Publisher Francis L. Dale agreed to pay $17.5 million for approximately 501,000 shares of Enquirer stock, Scripps announced Wednesday.

In November 1968 Scripps was ordered to divest itself of its 59 per cent of the stock in the Enquirer, a morning newspaper. Scripps was granted a 45-day extension on a court-ordered May 1970 selling date. A second requested extension was opposed by the federal government earlier this week.

Savings Time Petitions OK, Court Claims

LANSING (AP) — The State Appeals Court ruled today that petitions seeking to put the Daylight Savings Time issue on the November election ballot are valid.

However, Daylight Time opponents are sure to appeal the issue to the State Supreme Court, said a spokesman for the State Elections Division.

Demos Foresee Win Even If They Lose On Veto Of Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats, figuring to be the winners even if they lose, moved today to override President Nixon's veto of a $1.25 billion hospital construction bill.

They went into today's vote not particularly confident of picking up the two-thirds majority to overcome the presidential rejection of the measure, but feeling relatively assured of making political hay regardless.

The Democrats felt they couldn't be hurt politically by voting for hospital construction at a time when Nixon is asking Congress to make available $750 million for loans to hard-pressed railroads.

Furthermore, many GOP members say they still are criticized back home for sustaining the President's veto of a big health and education money bill last January.

With congressional elections less than five months away, candidates don't want to provide their opposition any additional campaign fodder.

Republicans took no solid position on the veto at a party conference Wednesday. Some said they would vote to uphold the President with the understanding a new bill would be passed to meet major White House objections.

The bill didn't register a single vote of opposition when it passed the House and the Senate originally and again when it cleared both branches in compromise form.

A House override sends the measure to the Senate where another two-thirds majority is required.

But the President objected, particularly to a requirement that funds provided to implement the bill must be spent and not withheld.

Migrant Worker Dies In Accident

STANTON (AP) — A 48-year-old migrant worker from West Waco, Tex., suffocated Wednesday when a jeep he was driving overturned into a water-filled irrigation ditch on a vegetable farm.

Montcalm County sheriff's deputies said Alphonso Juarez Romero was pinned beneath the overturned jeep. A medical examiner listed the cause of death as accidental suffocation.

Dallas Dedicates JFK Monument

About 250 persons gathered for the ceremony beside the memorial, designed by New York architect Philip Johnson and erected near the west edge of the downtown district.

"Designing this memorial was the only way I had of honoring this man I loved and admired," said the architect, a friend of the Kennedy family.

Robert Cullum, vice chairman of the city's Kennedy Memorial Commission, said in reference to the Nov. 22, 1963, assassination, "The shock of that day has largely healed, so let this monument pay tribute to the life of that winsome man, not to his death."

None of the Kennedy family attended the ceremony, although all had been invited.

Israeli Planes Strike Targets Near Damascus

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli warplanes attacked two Syrian army camps near Damascus today, the Israeli military command announced. The raids close to the Syrian capital were in retaliation for a heavy Syrian tank and artillery attack on Israeli posts in the Golan Heights Wednesday night.

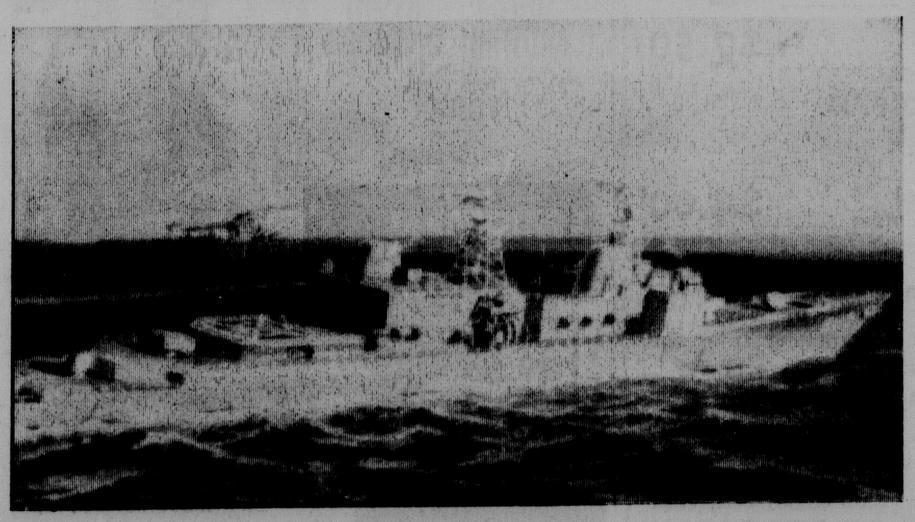

An Israeli spokesman said the air force attacked camps at Qatana, 16 miles southwest of Damascus, and Kiswah, 10 miles south of the city. He also reported an attack on another camp at Seijen, near Suwayda, 60 miles southeast of the capital.

A Syrian army spokesman in Damascus confirmed the attacks on Qatana and Kiswah, saying the Israeli jets bombed and strafed the two towns.

Amway Products Rating Noted In Report To City

The position of Amway Products in relationship to phosphate ratings was noted in a communication to City Manager George Harvey from Randy Preston, Amway Corp. director distributor services.

"Amway, since its inception a little over 11 years ago, has always been in the forefront for a cleaner environment and pioneered in the industry with the use of biodegradable surfactant ingredients in many of its cleaning products," Preston reported.

"Amway is exercising every effort, financially and through its research and development facilities, to reduce substantially the phosphate content of its cleaning products. It is interesting to note that Amway currently markets 11 cleaning products with little or no phosphates."

The report from Preston was in reply to an inquiry by the city and clarified information which had been publicized about the phosphate content of cleaning products. In the case of Amway, however, the high rated product was a water softener, not a detergent.

Coast Guard, Law Officers 'Go Fishing,' Net Lost Boat

The United States Coast Guard and the Delta County Sheriff's Department joined forces Wednesday morning to rescue a boat that had broken loose in Little Bay de Noc.

A fishing boat, which had been partially converted to a pleasure boat by Robert Bullard, 1608 Lake Shore Drive, Gladstone, was being towed across the bay by a 16-foot runabout driven by David Nelson, Rte. 1, Gladstone.

The plastic line, which was being used to tow the boat, broke and Nelson had to leave the boat to come into the Coast Guard station for help.

The Coast Guard went out and pulled the boat in and Robert Dunstone, marine officer for the Sheriff's Department, assisted when they reached Escanaba.

Bullard was bringing the boat to Escanaba for further repairs.

Waves on the bay were six to eight feet high at the time of the incident and the wind was estimated at 40 to 50 miles an hour, the Sheriff's Department said.

Molin To Direct Milliken Effort

Keith E. Molin, chairman of the Wayne County Republican Committee, has been named manager of Gov. William G. Milliken's 1970 election campaign, the Governor announced today.

"Molin is a political professional — in the finest sense of that term," said the governor. "But more importantly, he shares my determination to conduct a vigorous election campaign that will concentrate on the issues, avoiding narrow partisanship."

Molin, 33, has taken a leave of absence from his post as executive vice president of the Detroit Central Business District Association to manage the campaign.

An intercollegiate debating champion while a student at Northern Michigan University, Molin broke into politcs in 1962 as a field representatve for the Michigan Republican Party and later became the party's director of organization.

He was director of special groups in George Romney's reelection campaign in 1964 and also served as assistant to the chairman of the Rockefeller for President campaign in the midwest region.

A native of Escanaba, Molin was also active in the 1966 campaign in Michigan, serving as scheduling coordinator in Robert P. Griffin's successful campaign for tne U. S. Senate and as coordinator in U. S. Rep. Philip E. Ruppe's election in the 11th Congressional District.

Gov. Milliken's campaign this year will be coordinated by the Michigan for Milliken Committee, a volunteer organization headed by S. John Byington, a Detroit communications executive. The committee has offices in Lansing and Detroit.

Molin and his wife Peg, who is also associated with the committee, live in Westland.

The candidates, 43 Democrats and 29 Republicans, are seeking the offices of supervisor, clerk, treasurer, trustee and constable.

Contests have developed for the four-year term of trustee in Ford River Township and the office of clerk in Masonville and Nahma townships. Help Asked To Cut Damages At Ness Field

The City Recreation Department requests the cooperation of children and parents living in the area of the Al Ness Field in helping to reduce the damage being done to that facility. The Recreation Department wishes to remind the public that the Ness field is reserved for the Escanaba Cubs, and that it is not to be used for "pick-up games or as a race track for bikes or motor bikes.

Children are invited to use the diamond behind the New Jefferson School for their ball gmes. This field is official Little League size, and has been provided and maintained especially to be used as a recreational facility for the children of that area, recreation officials stated.

Damages to the Ness Field has already necessitated a complete resurfacing of the infield, one of the bleachers has been destroyed beyond repair, and the outfield fence has had a considerable number of laths broken out, apparently by children climbing over the fence and running into it with bikes. The Recreation Department is concerned not only because of the considerable expense involved in repairing the damage, and the high risk of personal injury to the children involved in the destruction; but also because of the possibility of serious injury to one of the Escanaba Cubs or to a visiting player or fan legitimately using the field.

The cooperation of parents and children is the only efficient curb to the destruction being done, and the Recreation Department earnestly solicits this cooperation, so that adequate and safe facilities may be available to all, officials said today.

Fishing Action Reported Fair

A vacation or long week-end which includes fishing possibly could be made more successful by several informational publications available from the DNR at Lansing.

Among these are "Great Lakes Fishing in Michigan's Upper Peninsula" and "Michigan Fish — How to Catch Them." The publications are free and can be obtained by writing the DNR in Lansing.

Alger County - Trout fishing is good with Ackerman Lake recommended for rainbow, Shelter Bay for lake trout, and the Whitefish and Slapneck for brook trout. Bass, panfish, and northern pike fishing is also good on the Au Train Basin. Rated as fair is walleye success on Au Train Lake in early mornings or late evenings, using night crawlers.

Delta County - Continuing to highlight the picture in this area is bass and northern pike fishing in the Big Bay de Noc area. Best areas are around St. Vital's Island, off the mouth of the Big River, off Butler's Beach, and in Garden Bay and South River Bay. Trout fishing is only fair with the Sturgeon, 18-Mile and Square Lake suggested. Perch fishing continues fair to good at Nahma, Garden Bay, off Big River and in Little Bay de Noc above Gladstone.

Marquette County - Best in this area is lake trout fishing out of Marquette Harbor with several fish in the 10 pound class taken. A few coho are also being taken by fishing a high line incidental to lake trout trolling. Perch fishing is good on Big Shag Lake and bluegill success also good on Little Shag and Anderson lakes. Most streams are rated fair for trout. Bass are fair on Bass Lake in T45N-R25 & 24W on plugs and minnows. Lake Independence is giving up a few walleye but they seem to be running small.

The contract also includes funds for land improvement, water and sewer systems for the 15 houses involved.

Player Raids

The National Collegiate Athletic Association made quite a fuss last week when the Denver Rockets of the American Basketball Association put Michigan State's star scorer Ralph Simpson under contract for a reported $1 million. Boycott the ABA, the NCAA said, and refuse to allow coaches and scouts to visit athletic departments or watch their teams practice.

Before the boycott got off the ground, however, ABA Commissioner Jack Dolph announced that the league would refuse to recognize the contract, if a contract existed, and Adolph Rupp, coach at the University of Kentucky and president of the National Association of Basketball Coaches said "it's all over."

Exactly what will happen to Simpson isn't so clear — because he signed a professional contract his college career apparently is over and because the ABA won't accept the contract his professional career can't begin — and the whole mess eventually may wind up in court. What the case does, however, is to dramatize again the delicate balance between professional teams and their college proving grounds and the tight rein necessary to maintain that balance. It is especially true in the sports of basketball and football, the collegiate money makers, and the only significant "farm system" for professional teams. If the pro teams started grabbing all the top talent — like the Denver Rockets did with Spencer Haywood from the University of Detroit and tried to do with Michigan State's Simpson — before the collegians used up their eligibility it wouldn't take long to create chaos on the athletic fields to match the disorders on campus.

Commissioner Dolph said Simpson's signing violates provisions of the ABA bylaws which prohibit any member club from signing players whose college eligibility has not expired and Commissioner Walter Kennedy of the rival NBA said his league's policy is similar. The National and American Football Leagues also stay an arm's length until a player's class graduates.

It's sound policy, for besides protecting the collegiate athletic program the player drafts of the football and basketball leagues provide a degree of equality of opportunity. If the policy didn't exist or wasn't enforced, a free-for-all would develop between teams and leagues bidding for any player at any point in his college career. By trying to sign Simpson, the Denver team was trying to circumvent the orderly process of the league and obtain a player they probably couldn't get in two years through the regular player draft. With Spencer Haywood on the floor, the Rockets aren't likely to finish poorly enough in the league to get an early draft choice (the team with the worst record chooses first) and when Simpson is in the talent pool legally he won't last very long. So the Rockets tried to grab him early like they did Haywood.

The signing of Haywood must have had the league's blessing as a major steal from the NBA. Now, with merger talks going on between the two leagues, the ABA is tryin to improve its image and allowing Denver to get away with Simpson could have severely damaged those discussions.

That the NCAA would react so sharply is understandable, but is not really too consistent when the organization's overall approach is considered. It boils down to dollars.

As costs continue to soar (scholarships, equipment, training facilities, fields, maintenance, salaries of coaches, transportation, etc.) major colleges and universities rely on basketball and football receipts to pay the bills. A player like Simpson can make the difference between a winning or losing team with resulting consequences at the gate. On the football field, one player (where would Southern California have been a couple of years ago without O. J. Simpson?) can mean a lucrative post season game.

And so when the pros take away a star before his college eligibility is over, it's only logical that the NCAA should scream.

The strange thing about the scream is that major league baseball teams regularly sign college players off campuses with little or nothing said, except perhaps by the college coach who lost the heart of his team. Bill Freehan, now the regular catcher for the Tigers, was paid a big bonus by the Tigers to sign a contract after his sophomore year at the University of Michigan. But Detroit scouts weren't barred from the Michigan campus and the NCAA didn't say a word. Baseball doesn't bring in much money at Michigan so the only loss was competitive, not financial.

Hopefully, however, professional raids on college athletic talent will be kept to a minimum by the pros own regulations and that NCAA action won't be needed. It's essential from both points of view.

THE JUGGLER

Views Of Jesse Owens Need To Be Sold, Too

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The Black Panthers can't be very numerous—a figure attributed to the FBI puts their number at somewhere under 1,000 for the whole nation. Yet this small band of professed Marxist revolutionaries seems to have cast a spell on the contemporary college generation, whether white or black.

A talk with Andy Coe, the Yale 1969 football captain, is revealing: Andy stresses the good the Panthers do in providing breakfast for slum children and giving the more militant blacks a sense of pride.

Well, as Andy says, even revolutionaries should get elementary justice, such as fair trials and freedom from false arrests. We can agree to that.

But why is it that the young on the campuses seem to have the idea that it is the Panthers alone who are concerned with putting food in the stomachs of the hungry and teaching the members of the Negro community to hold their heads high? I think of Dr. Thomas Matthew, dedicated Negro neurosurgeon who has started a score of businesses which give employment to blacks. There are others besides Dr. Matthew. For example, Jesse Owens, who splintered the Nazi claims of "Aryan" superiority in sports by winning four gold medals at the 1936 Berlin Olympic Games.

How many undergraduates who think of the Panthers as constituting the true Negro leadership have read Jesse Owens' recent "Blackthink: My Life as Black Man and White Man"?

Owens thinks the militants are a drag on the social and economic emancipation of the blacks (political emancipation is already a reality in most of the country, as the existence of Negro mayors and legislative representatives proves). He challenges the extremist Rap Browns and Harry Edwardses, the Black Panthers and the Black Muslims, with his own set of figures. The estimates for the Black Muslims range from 8,000 to 80,000—an uncertain statistic which would argue that the Muslims come and go, not pausing to be counted in any accurate poll.

As against the Muslims there are non-militant organizations whose figures do not fluctuate or otherwise baffle the statisticians.

Jesse Owens mentions the women. There are 40,000 Negro women in Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority, which fosters higher scholastic standards among blacks. There are three million in the National Council of Negro Women, who work peacefully for social and economic growth.

For men and women both, such organizations as the NAACP (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People) and the Urban League are an old story. The NAACP is not composed of Uncle Toms: a few weeks ago I talked with some of their leaders in South Carolina, and, while they are courteous enough, they say things to your face that are jolting to hear.

Jesse Owens admits to occasional relapses into hate; no Negro who has had his experiences can forget certain insults. But when he analyzed the hatred for "whitey" that the militants cultivate he discovered that most of it could be traced back to hidden feelings of self-hate and self-disgust.

In other words, it was not compatible with real pride.

Martin Luther King confessed to Jesse Owens that he, too, sometimes hated the white man "for just a little while." But Dr. King didn't let it affect his life. He told Jesse Owens to "biuld on what you know, what you love." It took years for Jesse to realize that he could build on his past as "the world's fastest human" by working with youngsters, mainly through the lesson of athletics. The most gratifying work he ever did was dealing with juvenile delinquency as a sports specialist with the Illinois Youth Commission.

Jesse believes that real progress is made in the world "one shot at a time" and "one kid at a time." He is critical in a kindly way of the type of mistake which a young Negro tennis star like Arthur Ashe can make through over-politicalization of life. Ashe once cancelled a commitment to play tennis for a handful of ghetto kids in Chicago in order to do an interview with a national magazine about what he thought could be done to remedy "society's ills."

It was Sargent Shriver, Owens says, who convinced Ashe that the magazine story was more important than pleasing a hundred grammar school youngsters by walking into their bailiwick and performing for them. After the Ashe cancellation was announced Jesse watched the kids as they, in turn, watched Rod Laver, a white substitute, hit a few balls. The kids were numb. Some couldn't hold back their tears. Others, too tough to admit emotion, went home even tougher than they had been before.

"We'll hear from some of them," says Jesse, "when it's too late for them to be changed by . . . any high-sounding interviews in national magazines."

But it is too bad that Jesse Owens' point of view doesn't get hawked on the street corners, too. We need the corrective if we are to have any of the balance that makes for meaningful education.

State Doctor Suggests Shorter Hospital Stays

CHICAGO (AP) — Shorter hospital stays for most surgical patients not only reduce the cost but aid in their recovery, a Michigan doctor said Wednesday.

"It is now possible and desirable to discharge the majority of surgical patients on the first or second postoperative day," Dr. Paul T. Lahti told a session of the American Medical Association convention.

Lahti, senior attending surgeon at William Beaumont Hospital Royal Oak, said that before patients were allowed to be out of bed soon after surgery many died of pneumonia and other complications.

"Recovery was slow, not from the surgical trauma, but from the prolonged period of inactivity and bedrest," he said.

"If a healthy person without surgery were put to bed for a week and given narcotics at intervals it would take him several weeks to recover from the experience," he noted.

The length of hospital stays has been steadily declining since 1941, he said and added, "It is difficult to overcome the traditions and habits of the past but the results are certainly worth the effort."

Lahti said a 1968 survey showed that a person would save $61 for each day he was discharged early from the hospital, and added that early dismissal could reduce hospital costs by 30 per cent.

The surgeon did a study of 1,114 early discharge patients who underwent surgery for a number of conditions including hernia, appendicidis, henorrhoids, breast tumor and other problems.

While the average hospital stay for patients in 1968 was 8.4 days, Lahti said, all patients in his study were discharged by the seventh day and 75 per cent of them were out of the hospital by the second day after surgery.

The doctor's approach to the patient has a bearing on how the patient will fare in the hospital, he said. The usual patient in the hospital for major surgery is frightened of the unknown, he said. When the patient is told that he will be in the hospital for several days, "he interprets this to mean that he will be ill," the surgeon said.

When he awakens from the anesthetic, "his fears are all brought to the surface," Lahti added. "Any minor discomfort is magnified into real pain. Narcotics only prolong the recovery period"

"In contrast the patient who knows that he will be up and about the afternoon of surgery and home the day after surgery, is relaxed, nor fearful and requires much less postoperative medication," he said.

Lahti recommended that patients be given analgestics — mild pain killers—after surgery rather than narcotics "to relieve the normal amount of discmofort."

OK Wage Increase For City Employes

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—City commissioners have approved formally a new two-year contract with Grand Rapids' more than 800 nonuniformed city employes. There was just one dissenting vote.

The agreement calls for seven per cent wage boost July 1 and another increase of five per cent on July 1, 1971. It also provides a union shop provision, requiring all employes to pay sums equal to union dues even if they are not union members.

Opening lead—king of diamonds.

It is not difficult to make four spades on this hand—provided you know where the jack of clubs is located. All you have to do to hold yourself to one club loser is to lead the club deuce towards dummy and finesse the ten.

But this method of play would earn you no garlands if it turned out that East had the jack of clubs. In that case, you would certainly regret having failed to lead the five from dummy in order to finesse the nine.

Since one seldom knows in such situations exactly where the jack is located, it might be interesting to study the technically proper approach to the play. The last thing a declarer should want to do is make an out-and-out guess for the jack.

One way of trying to avoid the guess is to play for a 3-3 heart division, in which case dummy's fourth heart can be utilized for a club discard.

Certainly this type of thinking is a step in the right direction, but declarer's task is not fully performed if he settles for only this one additional chance. There is a further possibility of making the contract even if the hearts are divided 4-2.

The best line of play, after trumping the diamond lead, is to ruff out dummy's remaining diamonds. Accordingly, declarer leads a trump to dummy's eight at trick two, ruffs a second diamond, then returns to dummy with a trump and ruffs dummy's last diamond.

Now declarer plays the ace and another heart. As it happens, West wins with the queen (East canot afford to overtake), and is forced to return a club or yield a ruff and discard. Either way, South avoids the critical club guess and coasts home with ten tricks.

TESTIMONY

I wish to make a correction in an article which appeared in Tuesday's paper regarding the testimony in the Rodney Cartwright hearing.

If you check the records you will find that I stated that I had loaned Mr. Cartwright a sum of money and did not give it to him as stated. Also, your statement that I lived with Mr. Cartwright was an incorrect interpretation of the facts.

AIRPORT INQUIRY

We believe the Daily Press analogy of the airport problem has not been fairly presented. Our criticism has been directed toward airport management, and since Mr. (Jon) Thorin is the manager, naturally he would be the one who would be criticized.

The problem has been oversimplified by the council and the city manager and shrugged off as a personality clash. Actually, this is an attempt by two citizens to inquire in a lawful fashion about a government function—expenditue of government money and "modus operandi".

Mansfield Raps Nation's Economy

By The Associated Press

"The things that should be going up—home building, take-home pay and real economic growth—are coming down. At the same time the things that should be coming down—such as interest rates, the cost of living and unemployment—are going up." Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana in a radio-television address to the nation.

Each transit of a ship through the lake-fed Panama Canal sends 52,000,000 gallons of fresh water into the sea—enough to supply a city of 350,000 for a day.

Social Security Set Romeos Take Heed!

Dear Ann Landers: Kindly devote a column to the Romeos of the Social Security Set — the way they worm their way into the widow's home, lounging on the well-made, expensive furniture, bought and paid for by a fine husband who worked his fingers to the bone (may his soul rest in peace.)

My elderly mother and I live together in the family home. I have not been in very good health lately. My biggest worry is that a certain old coot who has been courting Mother for several months will marry her if I should die. I've tried to open her eyes but she is flattered by his attention and acts like a silly school girl when he is around.

The man is like a bone in my throat. I can't stand him. Please give Mother some advice, Ann. She reads your column every day, and if the old coot reads it too, that's perfectly fine with me. — Hate Old Men

Dear Hate: If the furniture is as good as you say, he won't hurt it. Apparently your mother enjoys the old coot's company and that's her business. You need a hobby, kiddo. I recommend a young coot.

★ ★ ★

Dear Ann Landers: My sister passed away six months ago. She was only 34 and left three young children. Her husband was never one of my favorite people. Last week I bumped into him at an antique auction. He was talking antimatedly with a good looking, blond woman. I couldn't tell whether they were together. I greeted my brother-in-law as warmly as I could under the circumstances — which was not easy. I noticed he was not wearing his wedding ring. This was like a knife in my heart. My sister always loved to see that ring on his finger. She was so proud that he was never without it.

This incident has bothered me terribly. Should I get it off my chest and tell him what I think of him for forgetting so soon? — Still Mourning

Dear S. M.: Perhaps wearing that wedding ring would be like a knife in his heart, so why don't you tend to your knitting and let your brother-in-law handle his grief in his own way?

Dear Ann Landers: Our baby is three months old. This is the first child in my husband's family for 25 years so you can imagine the excitement.

Whenever we walk into a gathering of his relatives, they go wild over the baby and I am a nervous wreck. My mother-in-law grabs him, then an aunt comes along, next a cousin, then an uncle and a great-uncle — and round the room he goes, from one pair of hands to another like a lollypop, and everyone gets a lick.

Each one bounces him higher and handles him more roughly than the last. Naturally he spits up his lunch. My mother-in-law then demands to know what I fed him that cause him to throw up. They figure that since this is my first child I am a dumbbell and don't know anything.

What can I do with all these well-meaning idiots? I'm ready to try anything. — Alexandria, La.

Dear Al: You're not going to change your relatives, nor can you dampen their enthusiasm for the crown prince but you CAN eliminate the problem by leaving the baby home when you go to these family pow-wows. Infants don't belong at large adult gatherings. The relatives can see him when they come to your home — two or three at a time.

Shriver Working Hard For Others

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sargent Shriver, passing up any immediate run for public office, has taken over the job of bolstering Democratic congressional campaigns across the nation.

He said his party-backed "Congressional Leadership for the Future" project will be small but will try to interest persons not always involved in politics—celebrities, student leaders, business executives, educators and minority spokesmen—to help congressional candidates.

Shriver, a brother-in-law of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and until recently ambassador to France, had taken soundings on running for governor of Maryland but decided against it.

Doctor Finds Way To Get Rid Of 'Ouch'

CHICAGO (AP) — An Ohio doctor has found a way to take the ouch out of shots most children hate to take.

The doctor, Herman M. Lubens of Dayton, said at a news conference Wednesday, "I have a dream of having a generation of children grow up without fear of inoculations."

The method of eliminating pain from needle injections involves the application of an adhesive patch on which an anesthetic has been applied.

The numbing of the anesthetic starts in 20 to 30 minutes and the peak effect is achieved in two hours. The anesthetic looks like cold cream and contains an agent called licocaine.

Each adhesive patch has a blue square marked on it and this is placed over the area where the needle is to be injected.

This way, Lubens said, a mother can apply the anesthetic to the spot where the needle is to be stuck and prepare the child before taking him to the doctor's office.

Lubens said the anesthetic bandage is not yet commercially available. It has been tried for six or seven years on thousands of children, he said.

He said children's fears of doctors stem from their having been hurt and frightened by needles in the doctor's office. This fear often carries over into adulthood.

Auto Industry Asks Air Bag Device Delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The automobile industry asked the National Highway Safety Bureau Wednesday for an extension of the 1973 deadline for putting air bag safety devices in new cars but 80 congressmen petitioned against the request.

The automakers, testifying at a bureau public hearing, said adequate research and development of the car safety devices might take until 1975.

The air bags, to be mounted under the dashboard and in front of the back seat, are designed to pop out and inflate automatically in a split-second after an accident, thereby preventing occupants from being hurled forward.

Last March, Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe declared the devices were needed because only 25 per cent of motorists take the trouble to fasten seat belts.

Originally, the Highway Safety Bureau proposed a Jan. 1, 1972 deadline for automakers to install safety bags, but Volpe extended the cutoff date to 1973. He said the bags could not be manufactured in time for 1972 models.

Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D—N.Y., and Sen. Frank E. Moss., D—Utah, chairman of the consumer subcommitee of the Seante Commerce Committee obtained signatures of 60 House members and 20 Senators on a letter supporting the 1973 deadline.

General Motors proposed a four-phase program which would delay making the safety devices mandatory until 1975.

GM Engineer David D. Campbell said his corporation wants to install 150,000 air bags on an optional basis in some of its 1973 "road evaluations" on highways before making them standard equipment.

Judge Will Rule On Changing Site Of Murder Trial

ANN ARBOR (AP) — Washtenaw Circuit Court Judge John W. Conlin will rule Monday on a renewed motion to change the site of the John Norman Collins murder trial.

The judge announced his plan to rule on the renewed motion late Wednesday after the final prospective juror in the fourth panel called for the trial was excused "for cause."

Thirteen persons have been tentatively seated. They face removal by peremptory challenges from either chief defense counsel Joseph Louisell or Prosecuting Atty. William F. Delhey. Louisell used one peremptory challenge Wednesday, reducing to eight the number to which he is still entitled. Delhey has nine peremptory challenges left. Collins, 23 is accused of first-degree murder in the death last summer of Karen Sue Beineman, 18, the last of seven young women killed in the Ann Arbor area in a two-year span.

Central School Unit Inspected

Their firm is being retained by the Manistique Area Schools to work on future remodeling and possible building projects.

The two reviewed reports of conferences with teachers on school needs, held earlier by Principal Marvin Frederickson.

Instructor Arvid Larson reported this week that the school has received an F-85 engine and a 455 cubic inch engine, three two-barrel carburetors, 24 four-barrel carburetors, nine Delcotrons, a starter motor, four automatic transmissions and one motor manual.

School Accreditation Brings Heated Debate

The value of being accredited by the "North Central Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges" and the Community School Program were challenged at the regular board meeting of the Manistique Area Schools.

Tuesday's meeting, scheduled for policy review, resulted in considerable discussion of these and other issues.

When the question of adding an assistant principal to the administrative staff in order to comply with NCASSC recommendations arose, board member Robert Knoph questioned the value of accreditation.

Benefits Cited

It was pointed out that accreditation not only benefits the college-bound student, but community progress as well. Industry is more likely to be drawn to an area which maintains an accredited school, while an unaccredited school could discourage progress.

It was explained that in doing so, another area would have to be cut and the position could not be filled without additional cost.

Wants Jobs Eliminated

Knoph then suggested that the positions of business manager, Community School director and elementary supervisor be eliminated.

Superintendent, Edwin Wuehle, pointed out that the Community School Program does not cost the local school district any money.

Board member Jeanne Larson explained further that with the elimination of the adult education program, the district would also loose state aid payments for adults enrolled.

The board agreed to the possibility of eliminating the position of Elementary Supervisor.

After considerable discussion a suggestion was made to add to the list of objectives of the school system the board's desire to maintain an accredited school.

Voice Objection

Board members Leon Wood, William Mueller, and Robert Knoph voiced objection to the present policy of presenting itemized bills to the board for approval. They feel the board should review individual statements at their meetings.

Board President Denton Nelson suggested that if a question on a bill arises, the board member should investigate this in the school offices, prior to the board meeting.

Mueller suggested that due to the inconvenience of coming to the school offices, board members should be responsible enough to take the bills home with them for examination.

Suggestion Tabled

A suggestion by Wood to raise school lunch fees to 30 cents was tabled after Business Manager, Robert Kanerva, explained it was originally lowered to 25 cents in order to receive a 6 cent reimbursement from the state.

Other policy suggestions were the addition of the objective of preparing students for college and in another section that a two-year probationary period be required of all employes new to the school system.

School bus service, order of business during board meetings, and travel reimbursements were other areas of discussion.

July 13, is the scheduled reorganization meeting and the regular board meeting will follow on July 14.

State Plat Law Meeting Topic

The state plat law was discussed Monday night at the court house when county developers and planners and members of the Schoolcraft County Road Commission and County Board of Commissioners met with state officials.

R. S. D'Amelio, director of the local property services division, Bureau of Local Government Services, Department of the Treasury, and his assistant, Richard Lomax were present.

The meeting followed complaints by some area developers that platting requirements that included the building of access and subdivision roads to county standards was hindering the development of subdivisions in this area.

D'Amelio stressed that these are local problems between the road commission and subdivider, and should be solved on an individual basis.

He said he felt that the road requirements for Schoolcraft County, prepared by the Road Commission and approved by the old Board of Supervisors, were not excessive, and did not in any way restrict development.

In addition to the plat law, D'Amelio said it is imperative to have a county comprehensive plan, which Schoolcraft County has; a zoning ordinance, which the county has, but expires next April when a permanent ordinance must be adopted; and county building regulations, of which Schoolcraft has none.

Specific problems of local developers including private roads, were discussed.

Court Of Appeals Reverses Mafia Chief's Conviction

LANSING (AP) — The Michigan Court of Appeals has reversed the conviction of reputed Mafia chieftain Anthony Giacalone on charges of illegal possession of a blackjack.

The case was remanded Wednesday to Wayne County Circuit Court.

The appeals court said the search leading to discovery of the blackjack in Giacalone's home was a violation of his constitutional right "to be secure in his own home." The evidence was thus ruled inadmissible.

Giacalone's brother Vito currently is serving a five-year prison term on a similar charge.

District Court

Paul Hoholik, Rte. 1, pleaded guilty to careless driving and was ordered to pay a $15 fine and $15 costs.

Alfred Walworth, Clare, was found guilty of driving under the influence of liquor and paid a $60 fine and $40 costs.

Robert Benish, 624 Arbutus Ave., pleaded guilty to reckless driving and paid a $30 fine and $20 costs.

Senate Okays, Rejects Bill On Dope Term

LANSING (AP) — The Michigan Senate agreed Wednesday to eliminate a mandatory 20-year prison term for selling or giving away narcotics—then did an about-face and eliminated its own decision.

After first passing the bill 21-15, the Senate spent more than 30 minutes in a parliamentary tug-of-war that left the bill in position for still another vote.

The bill in question would revise a law requiring judges to impose a 20-year sentence when a person is convicted for the first time of selling or dispensing such narcotics as marijuana and heroin.

In place of the mandatory sentence, the bill gives judges the power to sentence a first offender to any term up to 20 years.

In addition, the measure hikes the penalties for subsequent convictions.

Sen. Gordon Rockwell, R-Mount Morris, opened the door for the technical hassle when he asked that his "aye" vote on final passage be changed to "no." Rockwell said he had believed the bill included a mandatory five-year minimum sentence.

As the Senate rules provide, Rockwell's vote was changed when there was no objection.

That brought the total votes for the bill to 20—exactly the number needed for passage.

But then Sen. N. Lorraine Beebe, R-Dearborn, also asked that her "aye" vote be switched, and Sen. Alvin Degrow, R-Pigeon, followed suit.

The requests resulted in the parliamentary quandry, since the rules allow vote changes only if the outcome of the roll call is not changed. If the two "aye" votes were switched, as Mrs. Beebe and Degrow asked, the measure would have been killed.

A half-hour of haggling over the rules followed.

A later compromise "vacated" the roll call and postponed further action on the proposal which already has the approval of the House.

Wonder Drug Overcharge Case Settled

NEW YORK (AP)—A federal judge has approved an $82.5 million settlement of overcharge claims against five manufacturers of so-called "wonder drugs," including the Upjohn Co. of Kalamazoo.

Claimants in 43 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico will share in the settlement. Seven other states and numerous individual users of the broad-spectrum antibiotics are pursuing treble damage claims.

The settlement involves 66 of 150 lawsuits on file in connection with the case. Court papers showed more than $300 million in claims have been filed against the companies.

Judge Inzer B. Wyatt, approving the compromise, to which about $8 million in interest will be added, said the chances of success for those continuing will be "no better than 50-50 and probably should more realistically be called slight."

Three of the five manufacturers offering the money — Chas. Pfizer & Co., American Cyanamid Co. and Bristol-Myers Co.—were convicted Dec. 29, 1967, of criminal conspiracy to restrain trade and to organize an actual monopoly of the "wonder drug" market. The conviction was reversed by the U.S. Court of Appeals here last April 16. The government has filed for a rehearing of the appeal.

Spokesmen for the companies said then that this did not affect the decision to pay back the money.

Joining in the settlement offer were Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp. and Upjohn, which were not defendants in the criminal suit.

Woman Irked After Losing Custodian Bid

FARMINGTON (AP) — Laverne Nichols, 32-year-old mother of seven, says she can mop floors and move furniture with the best of men and that the school board refused to promote her to head custodian only because she is a woman.

Her scores on written tests weren't as good, Prisk said, as those of William A. Brown, the man who got the promotion even though he has only 90 days's seniority compared to Mrs. Nichols' nine years.

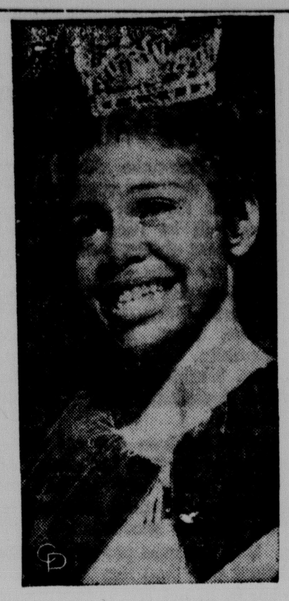

Mrs. Nichols now is counting on her union, Local 1456 of the American Federation of County and Municipal Employes, to fight her case.

"I guess you could call me persistent. I don't give up easily," said Mrs. Nichols.

The job she wants at East Junior High is one her husband, Charles, held before he moved to another school several months ago.

The extra $200 she would earn as head custodian "would put a lot of bread and milk on the table" for her children, aged 4 to 18, she said.

And it would mean she would work days and not nights as she has done the past nine years.

School Teachers Out During Strike Don't Lose Tenure

Kelley ruled a teacher on tenure and not under contract who withholds services because of a labor dispute has not discontinued his services within the meaning of the State Teacher Tenure Act.

It follows, Kelly said, that the teacher cannot be replaced permanently by the school district without further legal obligation. He also held a teacher does not lose tenure for withholding services during a labor dispute.

Kelley said he based his opinion on a State Supreme Court ruling in a Holland case. The high court held that teachers not under contract and who withhold their services as the result of a labor dispute remain employes of the school district.

The opinion was asked by Rep. Edgar Geerlings, R-Muskegon.

Sault Indians Finding 'Peace' At Lighthouse

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP)—More than 250 Indians—some wearing ceremonial dress, war paint, and beads — were given a guided tour of the Iroquois Point Lighthouse, 26 miles west of here, by forest rangers Wednesday, who promised to help the Indians acquire the lighthouse and its surrounding 62 acres for use as a youth center and museum.

Claiming they owned Iroquois Point under terms of two long-ignored treaties, the Indians had planned Wednesday to forceably "recapture" the land and lighthouse, now owned by the U.S. Forest Service.

As the Indians approached the lighthouse carrying banners reading "Indian Power," and yelling war-whoops, they were met by Alfred Troutt, district supervisor of the Hiawatha National Forest which includes Iroquois Point. Troutt unlocked the doors of the lighthouse, unused for the last 7 years, and showed them around the old, musty building which the forest service has ruled structurally unsafe.

After the tour, a leader of the young Indian group, Becky Carrick, 15, read a proclamation demanding that the United States end its "illegal occupation" of the lighthouse and recognize the Chippewa Indian Tribe as the "true owners." The Indians greeted the statement with a victory dance to the beat of two tom-toms.

Troutt told the Indians he would be happy to talk with them about their acquiring the land and lighthouse for renovation as a youth center and museum.

The Indian youths then adjourned to their home, the Bay Mills Indian Community 2 miles away, where they met with the tribal council to discuss concrete proposals for "reclaiming" the land.

Albert Leblanc, tribal chairman, said forest rangers told him they would help the Indians work out a plan for Indian use of the area.

Nixon Witnesses Richardson Shift

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon witnessed today the formal climax of his shift in top ranks of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare as Elliot L. Richardson became secretary and Robert H. Finch moved to the White House staff.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger swore in Richardson as head of the sprawling department and also administered the oath to outgoing Secretary Finch, who now is a Cabinet-level counselor to the President.

Richardson, who had been undersecretary of state, said he viewed his shift to HEW as "a high adventure" offering great opportunities "to move on to high ground" in service to people in need.

What's Right With America, Nixon Theme

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon heads West today to work on a report on the conclusion of the U.S. intervention in Cambodia after first giving a speech on "what's right with America."

That was the phrase a Nixon associate used to describe the remarks the President scheduled today at the 50th anniversary convention of the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce in St. Louis.

Making the trip with him were wife, Pat, daughter Tricia and a number of aides including chief of staff H. R. Haldeman, security adviser Henry A. Kissinger, appointments secretary Dwight Chapin and speech writer Patrick Buchanan.

The chief executive has yet to decide on a format for reporting to the nation on U.S. operations in Cambodia following the promised June 30 withdrawal of American troops from that country.

However, it was learned Nixon may make a nationwide television appearance next week from the western White House in San Clemente.

Nixon's talk to the Junior Chamber of Commerce was billed in advance as concerning "prospects for the future in the United States."

Chung Hee Park Stresses Need For U.S Troops

SEOUL (AP) — Seventeen years after the end of the Korean War, President Chung Hee Park said today that South Korea will need U.S. troops to protect it from North Korea "for a few more years." He said North Korea has completed preparations for another war and is now waiting for an opportunity to fulfill Premier Kim Il-sung's pledge to reunite the peninsula.

In a statement commemorating the 20th anniversary of the outbreak of the war, Park warned against any reduction in the 60,000-man U.S. military force in Korea.

Anti-Parochiaid Unit Files 319,317 Petitions

LANSING (AP) — The Council Against Parochiaid today filed petitions bearing 319,317 signatures with the elections division of the Secretary of State's office in an attempt to put the much debated issue on the November election ballot.

If the petitions are accepted and found legally correct, the voters would decide if the state may provide money for nonpublic schools.

Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley, however, already has ruled that the form of the petitions circulated by the council is faulty because of a technicality.

The problem is, Kelley said, tha the petitions are faulty in that they fail to state the language of the constitutional provision they seek to change.

Council leaders termed the response to their petition drive "terrific". Some 246,000 valid signatures are needed to place the issue on the ballot. The petitions circulators said they topped this by some 75,000.

The powerful Michigan Education Association spearheaded the petition drive.

Terry Herndon, association executive secretary, said if the Secretary of State's office refuses to accept the petitions as valid, the group will ask the State Court of Appeals to rule that the issue should be placed on the ballot.

The petitions were left with the elections division director, Bernard Apol. He said the decision on validity will be up to the Board of State Canvassers.

The board has the final say in election matters. It similarly has been involved in fights about Daylight Savings Time.

"The filing of these petitions today will frame the issue for a court response to the issue raised by Mr. Kelley," Herndon said. "We believe that the court will declare the people must have the opportunity to speak."

Minimum Wage Hike Due Soon

LANSING (AP) — Michigan's minimum wage will go up 20 cents to $1.45 an hour effective next Wednesday.

Another increase to $1.60 an hour will become effective July 1, 1971.

State Labor Department officials have estimated the hike will affect between 150,000 and 200,000 workers in the state.

Milliken termed the measure "long overdue."

"This measure will benefit the thousands of Michigan laborers who have been working at a subsistence wage level that has not kept up with the rising cost of living," he said.

"In this age of abundance, we cannot afford to ignore this growing segment of our population that is prevented from escaping poverty because they are not paid sufficiently for laborers," he said.

As first passed by the House of Representatives, the second increase would have been effective Jan. 1, 1970. The Senate changed the date to July 1 of that year and the House went along with the delay.

Concerning the peace initiative, Rogers said:

"Recent and disquieting events in the Middle East led President Nixon on April 29 to order a thorough review of all political and military aspects of the problem. That review has now been concluded.

"As a consequence of the review, the United States has undertaken a political initiative the objective of which is to encourage the parties to stop shooting and start talking under the auspices of Ambassador Jarring in accordance with the resolutions of the Security Council.

"Our objective in launching this initiative has been to encourage the parties to move towards a just and lasting peace which takes fully into account he legitimate aspirations and concerns of all governments and peoples of the area. In light of that objective, we believe it would not be useful to disclose at this time detail of the political initiatives or to discuss publicly military assistance for Israel.

"We believe that this is the time for such an initiative which we have launched directly with the parties and with other interested powers."

Appalachian Program May Be Expanded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is studying the multistate effort to develop Appalachia with an eye toward making it the framework for President Nixon's "new federalism" approach to government grants-in-aid.

During a recent six-state bus tour of the economically depressed region, officials of the Appalachian Regional Commission said the idea is being actively discussed with the White House.

"In all likelihood, some form of national legislation to create a regional process of aid for all 50 states will be proposed," said John D. Whisman, the states' regional representative to the commission.

The Appalachian Regional Commission was established by Congress in 1965 to pour federal aid into the area and develop it on a coordinated, planned basis.

The key element in the ARC's strategy is its insistance on local planning and initiative before a federal grant is approved. It requires that local areas form development districts consisting of several towns and counties to receive federal aid.

Ralph Widner, the commission's executive director, said the Appalachian approach "still has some bugs in it" as a national policy.

But he commented during the tour: "So far, Appalachia is the only part of the country that is trying in its own stumbling way to determine what a national growth policy should be."

Southern Blacks Taking Advantage Of Voting Act

Their impact in the seven states covered has been felt at the polls.

According to latest available figures, 407 blacks now hold elective offices in those seven states—a vast majority of these are on local levels.

Only a handful of Negroes held elective offices in the states prior to passage of the act, and most of those were in small all-black municipalities.

Georgia, for example, has more Negroes in the state legislature than any other state except Illinois. Each has 14.

Increased Voting Power

As important to Negroes as the election of black officials is the effect their increased voting power is having on white office holders, who no longer can ignore their presence and in some cases seek their support.

Some examples of black voter registration:

In 1965, 23.5 per cent of Alabama's black voting age population was registered; now more than 61 per cent is registered; in Mississippi the jump is from 8.3 per cent to 66.5 per cent, a numerical increase from 35,000 to 281,000.

The difference reflected by the increase is expressed by Ida Holland, who was a local civil rights worker in Greenwood, Miss., in 1963.

Describing her work with local blacks at the time, she said, "I asked the people if they would like to vote. Some didn't know what voting was."

Army Vehicles Receive Damage In Firebombing

MARINETTE, Wis.—A possible fire-bombing at the site of the National Guard Armory in Marinette, early Wednesday caused minor damage to two trucks parked immediately behind the brick structure, authorities said.

They said someone apparently climbed over a fence to hurl an incendiary device.

Marinette police, FBI agents, Army National Guard officials and the state fire marshall's office are seeking a person or persons unknown who attempted to burn the military vehicles at the Armory.

According to Capt. Wayne Adler, of the National Guard, Green Bay, who is investigating the incident, there is no estimate of the damage at this time and termed what damage there was as minor.

Firemen were called to the Armory at 5:32 a. m. where they extinguished fires on two trucks. A third truck according to officials was saturated with inflamable liquid but had not been ignited. Firemen were at the scene approximately an hour.

Savage Storm Rakes Detroit

Leslie White, 54, of Wyandotte, was struck by lightning Wednesday at the Dearborn Hills Golf Course near Detroit as, police said, he and his wife were running for shelter from heavy rain.

The storm which swept through the Detroit area ripped down power lines, uprooted trees and flooded several streets. Afternoon rush hour traffic was snarled but not seriously.

Detroit Edison Co. reported major power failures as about one inch of rain deluged the metropolitan Detroit area in a 2½-hour period Wednesday afternoon.

A Grosse Pointe Park police reported 40 calls on downed wires, and Patrolman Gustave Boone said, "We can't begin to count the number of trees and limbs down."

Ann Harnett, 35, of Grosse Pointe Park, was treated at a hospital for back and arm injuries after she was hit by a falling tree limb near her home.

Detroit Edison Co. said one power failure affected about 2,500 customers in the Hamilton-Pingree-Tuxedo area on detroit's Northwest Side, another knocked out service to about 1,800 customers around Gratiot and East Grand Boulevard, on the East Side and a third affected about 6,000 persons in suburban Northville.

Market Clings To Small Advance

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market lost some of its earlier gains but clung to a narrow advance today in slow trading.

At noon, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 2.26 at 694.55, after being up earlier more than 5 points.

Advances maintained a slim lead over decliners among the issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Motors, chemicals, tobaccos, electronics and airlines were ahead, while most other categories were mixed.

One factor cited for the gains was the unusually high odd-lot short sales Wednesday. Some market sources say such a trend tends to be typical of a market bottom.

Do you take your furniture polish with, or without?

You say you don't drink furniture polish? Well then, why do you include it when figuring your weekly "grocery" bills? Come on, admit it. We all do it. Checking out at the supermarket, we think: "Wow! I used to get 4 bags of groceries for half that!" Yes, you did. But, years ago, those bags held groceries. Today, you're buying more and more non-food items with your food. Things like pots and pans, charcoal; even fertilizer and encyclopedias are now sold in supermarkets.

Sure, inflation has forced food prices up; but, not as much as other things. From 1958 to 1968, food went up 16% while clothing was up 20%, housing 27%, medical 45%. Since 1950, farm output per man has increased 6% annually compared to 2.5% for all other industries. Americans spend only about 16.5% of income on food; the lowest in history and about half of any other country in the world! It's all due to the amazing efficiency of the American Farmer, implementing the modern farming methods encouraged and practiced by members of the Michigan Milk Producers Association.

So, next time you check your food bill, please just count the food items. Then count your blessings

Yankees Two Back

Schofield Goes From Sub To Star In Bosox Victory

By The Associated Press

The night started normally for Dick Schofield, Boston's occasional infielder. He figured on watching the game against Baltimore from his usual vantage point on the Red Sox bench. Then Mike Andrews showed up with an aching back and Schofield went from sub to star, just like that.

Starting at second base in place of Andrews Wednesday night, Schofield whacked a bases-loaded triple that tied the score in the seventh inning and then scored Boston's winning run on a sacrifice fly as the Red Sox rallied to knock off the Orioles 6-5.

Schofield, the journeyman infielder who has been cashing big league paychecks since 1953, figured Andrews' injury and his subsequent start gave him a break. "When you pinch hit the way I usually do, you only get one chance," said Schofield. "Tonight, I had four."

4 Homers For Murcer

Elsewhere in the American League Wednesday, Bobby Murcer walloped four home runs—three of them in the second game—as the New York Yankees split a doubleheader with Cleveland, losing 7-2 before winning 5-4, Oakland tripped Kansas City 5-1, Minnesota edged Milwaukee 3-2, Detroit topped Washington 3-2 in 11 innings and California swept a doubleheader with Chicago, winning the first game 3-1 and taking the second 2-1.

Schofield's triple was his first extra base hit of the season and it followed three walks sandwiched around Tom Satriano's single which had narrowed Baltimore's lead to 5-2. After his three-bagger tied the score, Schofield trotted home with Boston's winning run on Reggie Smith's sacrifice fly. The hit increased his batting average for the season to .162.

Four For Four

When it came to home runs though, nobody outdid New York's Bobby Murcer, who clouted four in his last four official at bats against the Indians in the doubleheader. A base on balls interrupted the string.

Murcer's first shot came in the ninth inning of the opener against Sam McDowell, who scattered five hits and beat Mel Stottlemyre. The Yankee ace was struck on the pitching arm by a batted ball and forced to leave the game in the fifth inning.

Cleveland promptly jumped on reliever Mike Kekich for four runs—two on Ted Uhlaender's bases-loaded single—and that was plenty for McDowell.

Murcer homered with the bases empty in the first inning of the nightcap, connected with one on in the fifth and then cracked his fourth of the day, tying the score at 4-4 in the eighth after Graig Nettles' two-run shot had given Cleveland the lead. Then Roy White doubled and scored New York's winning run on Danny Cater's single.

Winner Stan Bahnsen was the victim of a one-punch knockout by Cleveland's Vada Pinson after a tag play at home plate. Both benches emptied but peace prevailed after the incident.

Oakland Wins

Darrell Osteen, making his first American League start, stopped Kansas City for five innings and then Marcel Lachemann finished up with four strong innings of relief, combining to pitch Oakland past Kansas City.

The A's scored two unearned runs on Paul Schaal's throwing error in the first and that was all they needed. RBI-doubles by Joe Rudi and John Donaldson keyed a three-run wrapup Oakland rally in the sixth.

Tony Oliva's eighth inning single snapped a tie and moved Minnesota past Milwaukee. Oliva's two-out single scored Cesar Tovar, who was hit by a pitch and stole second.

Tom Murphy's three — hit pitching stymied Chicago as California whipped the White Sox in the first game of their doubleheader. Two of the hits off Murphy came in the first inning and Chicago didn't get another until the ninth.

The White Sox managed only two hits in the nightcap against Mel Queen, who got his first American League victory, and reliever Eddie Fisher.

McAuliffe Gets Key Hit; Tigers Edge Senators 3-2

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Detroit Tigers bested the Washington Senators 3-2 in 10 innings on a Mickey Stanley single and a Dick McAuliffe double.

McAuliffe's one out bloop double came off reliever Darold Knowles, 1-6, who had come into the game at the start of the inning. Stanley then drilled is hit to left, making reliever Fred Schermann, 2-1, the winner.

The Tigers had gone ahead 2-0 in the second off starter Casey Cox on Bill Freehan's single, a triple by Elliot Maddox and starter Earl Wilson's sacrifice fly.

But the Senators got one back in the bottom of the inning on Frank Howard's 20th home run of the season and tied it in the fourth as Aurelio Rodriguez slammed his 11th homer.

The win came after the Baltimore Orioles 6-5 loss to Boston was posted on the scoreboard. The Detroit win coupled with the Birds loss trims the Baltimore lead to eight games over the AL East third place Bengals.

Karras Fails As Skydiver

Karras was scheduled to make his first parachute jump at 3 p.m. as a publicity stunt for the Alex Karras Cystic Fibrosis Golf Tournament at Shores Acres Golf Club.

At three O'clock, the jump was rescheduled for 4:30 because of threatening weather. The new time came and went with the 245-pound Karras still on the ground.

Finally, at 5 p.m., five professional jumpers landed on the first fairway as the earth-bound Karras looked on.

"I didn't like the wind," said the burly Karras. "That's the only thing that stopped me. I guess you could call it chickening out. What else can I say."

Merchants Surge

The Merchants ocntined their surge in the third inning when Bob Corriveau slammed a triple to center and Keith Gluesing followed with the Merchants' second homer of the evening.

Jolly Roger rallied back in the fourth to cut the gap to 4-2 when JimBourdeau, Marty Oslund and Bob Bourdeau all singled. In the fifth the Merchants chased Mammy Bourdeau from the mound when they scored four runs. Jug Bourdeau came in to relieve Mammy for Jolly Roger and gave up only one run, that a homer by Corriveau in the sixth inning that put the Merchants out front 9-2.

Jolly Roger challenged again in the last inning when they scored two runs, but fell short at the outcome of the game.

Bill McGovern went the distance on the mound and picked up the victory, striking out seven and allowing only seven hits.

Gladstone Wins

Gladstone took an early 2-0 lead in the first inning against Michigan Hotel when Bob Grenier led off with a double and scored on another double by Rick Ebbesen who also scored on an error.

Gladstone had to rally from a 3-2 deficit in the fifth inning after Michigan Hotel scored two runs when Dan Gouin and Den Papineau singled and later scored on two Gladstone errors.

In the sixth inning Gladstone exploded for four runs when Cliff Young, the starting and winning pitcher for the Merchants, doubled and scored on a double by Mike Gobert. Two errors on the Hotelmen and a three run double by Bill Shope made it look like the win was in the bag, but Michigan Hotel came back in the bottom of the seventh inning to narrow the final gap to three runs 9-6.

Bob Grenier led the Gladstone attack with two hits while Dale Gibson had a home run with Gobert, Ebbesen and Young all having doubles. Howard Porath started on the mound for Michigan Hotel and took the defeat. Papineau paced Michigan Hotel with three hits.

Harmon Killebrew of the Minnesota Twins won his first American League most valuable player award following the 1969 season.

With Escanaba Jaycee Little League tournament team practice scheduled to get under way the week of July 6th, Little League officials announced that Friday was the deadline to turn in all soap sale receipts. They also indicated that the sale had been so successful that the operation of the "rookie league" which will be run in conjunction with the tournament team practice has been assured.

One game away from the second half championship, the Lions Little Leaguers will be out to wrap it up tonight when they face Credit Union at the Little League Field at 6 o'clock. Kevin Cutler backed up his one hit pitching performance last night with three hits in three trips to the plate as the Lions belted the Bankers 14 to 2.

The Bankers, one of the two teams to beat the Lions this year, staged another of their 10 run innings against the Eagles earlier in the week, but to no avail as the Birds won 17 to 12 in a game that they rapped out 19 hits in eight innings.

Rotary was finally getting the hang of it as they parleyed three hits into an 11 to 8 win over Exchange Saturday behind their 10 year old lefty, Denny Leveille. Mike Smith ran Rotary's streak to three in a row Monday when he threw a two hitter against VFW as Glen Beauvais took the 14 to 4 loss.

Credit Union kept within striking distance of the Lions as Harvey Gendreau halted the Eagles 7 to 3 on six hits. Ed LeGault was a winner for Kiwanis Tuesday as they took the Bankers 9 to 5. Eric Hanson and John Sankovich of the Eagles continue to lead the league in batting with .444 averages with Cutler and Randy Kleiman remaining in the elite circle at an even .400. Cutler continues to top the pitchers with a 5 and 0 record.

Steve Owens Worried About Going 'Big Time'

DETROIT (AP) — Heisman-trophy winner Steve Owens who got $200,000 for signing a Detroit Lions contract is the first to concede his record-breaking college football career won't mean a thing when he goes up against the pros this fall.

"I have not done a thing in professional football so nobody has anything to fear from me and I have only one job — to play pro ball well enough so the other teams will respect me, "Owens told a news conference Wednesday.

Last To Sign

He was the last of the Lions 15 draft choices to ink his contract and he shared the spotlight with two other Lion newcomers... defensive end Jim Mitchell of Virginia State and Ray Parson of Minnesota, an end, at Lions headquarters.

Owens signed a four-year $200,000 pact with the Lions at the time of the National Football League draft last year. Sources close to the team said it contains some bonus clauses but that it was well below the $400,000 the Lions paid to get Nick Eddy from Notre Dame and $300,000 for Mel Farr from Southern California in recent years.

Owens, who practically rewrote the NCAA record book for running in his three years varsity career at the University of Oklahoma, was the first to admit he did not expect to run wild in pro ranks.

"I feel that running inside would be my best bet, for I do not have the blazing speed of a Mel Farr or Nick Eddy and if the Lions give me the word, I plan to run inside," he said.

"I know very little about the Lions but I hear they have some fine runners and my goal will be to try to break into the starting lineup," he said after a brief session with Lions general manager Russ Thomas at which the final details of the contract were agreed upon.

Ran For Daylight

"In college, I was the type of player who lined up about six yards back and ran for daylight but I'm not going to be running over anybody in pro ball so I will have to try and go around them," he said.

Owens, who gained over 100 yards in each of 17 consecutive games at Oklahoma wound up his college career just short of 4,000 yards — 3,867 to be exact —totaling up to more yardage than any college player ever had run before. He picked up 56 touchdowns along the way as he broke seven NCAA rushing records and nine Big Eight conference marks.

Owens admited he was a bit disappointed when he did not go until the 19th draft choice last year, despite his record smashing rushing.

Owens and his wife, Barbara, whom he met while they were seventh graders in his hometown of Miami, Okla., were jubilant about one thing Wednesday—their success in finding a home for the football season.

"This is Barbara's first trip to Detroit and we were reconciled to doing a lot of shopping around and looking for an apartment when we learned from one of the Lions that Earl Morrall had a house he wanted to rent," Owens explained.

"I never have met Morrall but we hurried out to his Bloomfield Hills home and his wife was very kind and showed us all around. We took it on the spot for four months beginning August 15th and our housing problems are solved."

Morrall To Colts

Morrall former Michigan State and Detroit Lions star is slated to report to the Baltimore Colts training camp in mid-August.

The 212-pound Owens, who has his sights set on getting his weight up to his running best potential of 225 pounds by season opener, handled newsmen's questions like a veteran.

He got a chuckle when he said, "I've never met Alex Karras but I hear he is rough on rookies at preseason training camp" That was a reference to the fact that Karras and other Lions veterans put newcomers through a bit of hazing, with requirements such as one the new players sing their college songs.

"I don't have much of a voice," Owens said.

SUMMER JOB — David Eisenhower, 22, son-in-law of President Nixon pauses at door of the baseball Senators office in Washington, where he has a summer job. "He's just a handyman," said wife Julie. He's just working wherever he is needed." The Senators could use team help.

Clay Softens, May Fight In Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — Cassius Clay's 3½ - year rest from the prize - fighting ring appeared nearing an end today as groups in both Michigan and Washington moved to clear the way for a heavyweight title fight between the fiery ex-champ and Joe Frazier, now recognized as the world champ.

A fight promotion group, represented by former Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanagh, confirmed Wednesday they are trying to stage a heavyweight title fight between Clay, also known as Muhammad Ali, and Frazier.

There remained the possibility, meanwhile, that Clay might meet Frazier in Seattle this September. The Washington Boxing Commission, which meets Friday, will consider licensing Clay. A group of Tacoma men filed formal application for the license Monday.

Clay held the world champion title until after his conviction for failure to report for Army duty. His case is being appealed.

Both Michigans Gov. William G. Milliken and State Boxing Commissioner Chuck Davey have indicated they would not oppose efforts to place the fight in Detroit. A spokesman for the governor said if all legal technicalities are cleared, and Davey approves the fight, the governor would not stand in the way.

Davey said he could make no recommendation for the fight until formal papers, applying for sanctioning of the match, had been filed. "As far as I know, as things stand now," he said, "Clay would be allowed to fight here."

An attorney for Clay in Tacoma, Neil Hoff, said Clay's attorneys had authorized him to push for a fight in Seattle. One member of the Washington Boxing Commission has stated his support for the license approval. Chairman Harry Lynch opposes the move. The third and deciding member has not said what he would do, but there have been reports he is willing to grant the license.

A source in New York, who refused to give permission for use of his name, said the terms, already worked out once for a proposed Texas fight last December, would call for Clay and Frazier to receive $300,000 each as a guarantee and an equal percentage of the gate and all auxiliary rights.

The last time Clay fought was March 22, 1967, when he knocked out Zora Folley in the seventh round. Clay, unbeaten as a professional uncapped a wave of public controversy when on refusing induction into the Army, he said, "I ain't got nothin' against no Vietcong."

Doc Greene Quits Over Clay-Frazier Heavyweight Bout

DETROIT (AP) — Edgar C. "Doc" Greene, a popular Detroit newspaper columnist, has left the employ of the Detroit News after becoming involved in promoting a heavyweight boxing match between former champion Cassius Clay and champion Joe Frazier.

The News said today that Greene left the paper Wednesday but declined to comment on whether he had been fired or had resigned.

Greene said he had been fired.

Martin S. Hayden, editor of the News, said Wednesday night, "The News doubts that a Clay-Frazier fight would be in the best interests of Detroit."

Greene told The Detroit Free Press that he was called into Hayden's office Wednesday and told to drop his connections with the fight, tentatively scheduled for Sept. 21 at Detroit's Cobo Arena.

Red Hot Mets Knock Cubs From First Place

By The Associated Press

The New York Mets cleaned up in Chicago and the Cincinnati Reds moved out of Crosley Field on a tidy note, leaving a slightly ruffled Leo Durocher and Juan Marichal in their wakes.

The Mets captured the National League East lead Wednesday knocking Durochers' Cubs out of the top spot by sweeping a doubleheader, 9-5 and 6-1, while Johnny Bench and Lee May ripped consecutive eighth-inning homers off Marichal in the Reds' 5-4 triumph over San Francisco in the final game after 58 years at Crosley field.

The defending world champion Mets took over first place from the Cubs by one-half game after taking their fourth straight in the five-game set which concludes today. It was Chicago's sixth loss in a row and dropped them from the lead for the first time since April 22.

"What can you do," said Durocher, the Cubs' skipper. "The pitching is terrible and we can't hit."

Durocher shook up the Cubs, benching slump-ridden Ron Santo and using Ernie Banks only as a pinch hitter but still couldn't stop the Mets fine pitching and hot-hitting.

Noland Ryan, 5-5, gave up a leadoff single to Don Kessinger and then held the Cubs hitless through seven innings before leaving with a blister on the middle finger of his throwing hand.

Play Good Ballgame

Tommie Agee knocked in three runs and Cleon Jones four in the opener for the Mets and Wayne Garrett, who homered in the opener, had a pair of RBIs in the nightcap. Banks had a three-run pinch homer for the Cubs in the first game.

"We certainly didn't make the Cubs the target," said Gil Hodges, the Mets manager. "But if you play good baseball and keep winning you know you can catch anybody. Our boys are playing real good baseball —getting hits, runs, pitching and defense."

Bench ripped his 25th homer of the season, tying the score at 4-4 off Marichal, who dropped to 3-7 this year, before May socked his 19th of the season off the Giants' right-hander, who held a 19-9 lifetime mark over the Reds before the game.

The Reds drew 28,027 for the finale before moving on to Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium on June 30.

Great Way To Go

"It was a great way to go out," Bench said. It's just as though it had been written in a script."

When the lights finally went out at Crosley Field, 4,543 regular season game had been played there since its opener on April 11, 1912. The stadium was also the first in the majors to have lights and the first night game was played there on May 24, 1935.

Joe Moeller, a five-year veteran, hurled his first major league shutout, blanking the Braves on six hits as the Dodgers made it three in a row over Atlanta.

Carl Morton fired a three-hitter and the Expos exploded for six fifth inning runs off loser Chris Short of the Phils. John Bateman doubled and homered for Montreal.

Al Oliver's 11th inning single scored Gene Alley with the winning run in the Pirates come from behind triumph. Pittsburgh had tied it at 3-3 in the ninth on Bill Mazeroski's ground out. Richie Allen had a two-run blast for the Cards, his 20th of the season.

Meat-Packing Plant Investigation Asked

WASHINGTON AP) — A congressional watchdog report charging filthy, rat-ridden meat-packing plants were allowed to stay in production by U.S. inspectors has brought a senator's demand for a probe of the Agriculture Department itself.

The report by the General Accounting Office said unsanitary conditions or contaminated meat were found in 44 of 48 Midwestern packing plants inspected last year. Two of the offending plants are now closed and the others have improved substantially, the GAO said.

It blamed continuance of the conditions over a period of years on lax inspection and faltering enforcement by the department's Consumer and Marketing Service, which is responsible for certifying the nation's 3,200 federally inspected packing plants to receive federal grading services.

GAO investigators said they found carcasses contaminated with feces and hair, observed flies, cockroaches and rats, noted the use of dirty equipment and the contamination of meat by rust, by cooling fluids and by plaster, paint and dirt.

The report appeared to substantially confirm charges consumer advocate Ralph Nader made more than a year ago to the government operations subcommittee headed by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn.

Both the GAO and the Agriculture Department said that since the GAO survey began, enforcement has been tightened. The department said no meat is now known to be sold from unsanitary plants.

Ribicoff, who requested the GAO report, declared: "These are serious charges against certain meat packers who provide prepared meat for millions of Americans. . .We must find out why the Agriculture Department is unable to carry out its directives in the supervision and regulation of federal meat quality standards."

Clearly, a fullscale investigation of the Department of Agriculture is called for, Ribicoff said.

The GAO investigators said they had been told the department's consumer service had for years accepted inadequate sanitation efforts by plant managers, that many of its own inspectors were unwilling to incur the anger of plant officials by insisting regulations be followed and that high officials in the service itself failed to support their inspectors' attempts to correct the situation.

"After our visits to some of the plants, C&MS personnel adopted more stringent measures, including suspension of inspection serivces from plant areas having numerous sanitation deficiencies," the GAO probers said.

Such action bars a plant from selling meat products in interstate commerce.

In separate statements, both the Agriculture Department and the GAO's head, U.S. Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats, said the inspected plants represented a relatively small number of plants and did not necessarily represent the situation in the entire industry.

Staats said plants chosen for inspection were taken from previous reports of unsanitary conditions.

Homeowners' Mortgage Law Remains Intact

LANSING (AP) — The Michigan House voted Wednesday to continue exempting homeowners' mortgages and land contracts for another year from the state's century-old usury law which sets a 7-per-cent ceiling on interest rates.

The 79-20 vote to extend an experiment aimed at making home loans more competitive with other lending rates came after little discussion during a lull in debate on higher education appropriations, state controls over college autonomy and campus unrest.

The open market on home construction loans expires Dec. 31 unless extended or repealed by the Legislature. Increase of the prime lending rate to 8½ per cent last year led the Legislature to authorize freeing mortgage rates in an effort to stimulate housing sales. Bankers subsequently reported rates climbed to 8-8⅜ per cent.

A house amendment offered jointly by Speaker William A. Ryan, D-Detroit, and GOP Minority Leader Robert E. Waldron of Grosse Pointe, curbs the measure by setting a new expiration date of Dec. 31, 1971.

The house version also deletes a loophole added by the senate to free financially speculative second mortgages from the 7-per cent limitation of the usury law.

The bill now returns to the Senate which has the option of accepting House changes or calling for a joint conference committee to work out a compromise.

Both versions of the bill would continue to bar lenders' holding back loan principal as a security deposit, deducting discounts or "points" for account service and loan insurance or charging more than 1 per cent interest for quick "prepayment" of the loan within three years.

In effect, however, those restrictions are made unnecessary by the latitude to charge any rate the market will bear.

Two Separate Capsules Used In July Draft

WASHINGTON (AP) — The July 1 draft lottery will use two separate sets of capsules to scramble the dates of the year and the draft lottery numbers simultaneously, Draft Director Curtis W. Tarr announced today.

A mathematician with Tarr said the double scrambling is capable of producing an astronomical number of different combinations totaling 625 followed by 1,556 zeros.

One of those combinations will become the order in which men turning 19 this year will be subject to the draft in 1971.

Tarr described the new lottery procedure in a news conference, explaining that it utilizes both the computer and the physical mixing process, to satisfy the concern of those who see advantages or disadvantages in either method.

The complex process involves the preparation by mathematical means of random lists which will be used to put the capsules into their containers, the spinning of these containers to mix the capsules even more, and finally the drawing of capsules by more than 100 representatives of the Selective Service System's Youth Advisory Committees from throughout the country.

The extreme caution shown at every step appeared a far cry from the method used last December when the dates of the year—representing birthdays of draft age men—were placed in capsules, poured into a bowl and then drawn out one by one.

House Uses Funds As Lever Against College Dissidents

LANSING (AP) — Using its power of the purse to strike back at unrest and free-wheeling campus administrations, the Michigan House has voted to force colleges to expel student vandals and send straying teachers back to their classrooms or face budget penalties.

The election-year demonstration of legislative muscle came late Wednesday night as the House capped a day of debate by passing a $355.3 million higher education appropriation on a bare 57-39 roll call.

The bill, sent back to the Senate for action on House amendments, contained a $6.18-million increase over Senate spending proposals that had cut $5.8 million from Gov. William G. Milliken's original appropriation request.

Bill Goes To Senate

In all, the massive, higher education appropriation now proposes a $42.1 million annual increase in the cost of supporting the state's 15 major colleges and universities and 29 two-year community, colleges.

The subject of ever mounting costs, however, was relegated to a virtual afterthought in debate that saw these developments:

—A 62-34 vote to require schools receiving state funds to expel any student "who causes wilful damage to public property on a campus or other facility of a college or university."

Wayne Fund Cut

—A 70-27 vote to cut $93,000 from Wayne State University's $46.08 million appropriation because of the administration's failure to curb publication by the campus newspaper, "The South End," of articles emphasizing profanity and sexual perversion.

—Adoption of a Senate-passed priviso that graduate faculty members spend at least 10 hours a week in classroom instruction that undergraduate faculty teach 12 hours a week and community college instructors at least 16 hours.

—A one-year's warning to junior college administrators to curb tuition and spending increases or face state-imposed tuition scales. The 12-months grace period came over the objection of majority Democrats who wanted to put the tuition controls into effect with the start of the new appropriation period on July 1.

Funds Higher

A total of $288.1 million would be earmarked for the 15 major colleges next year, an increase of $35.8 million over this year's spending, $5.08 million more than the Senate has proposed.

The 29 community colleges would receive $47.3 million, an increase of $1.29 million over Senate appropriations but $3.2 million less than this year's support.

Rep. James Farnsworth, Plainwell Republican who is the ranking minority member on the House Appropriations Committee, sought to cut allocations for the major colleges.

"It's too much money," he said of the proposed $6 million increase. "These people don't need to be rewarded."

It was understood that the rationale of the increase, voted through by majority Democrats, was to gain bargaining leverage with Senate Conference Committee delegates.

Vandals Target

The amendment requiring expulsion of student vandals was sponsored by Rep. Joyce Symons, D-Allen Park. Mrs. Symons proposed a total of seven other restrictive amendments that were either defeated or withdrawn. One would have forbidden students to have time off from classes this fall to work in pre-election campaigns.

The $93,900 cut in the Wayne State Budget was proposed by Rep. Joseph P. Swallow, R-Alpena, and had the enthusiastic support of Appropriations Committee Chairman William Copeland, D-Wyandotte, who said Wayne Students threatened retaliation against any legislative cut in the school's budget.

Swallow, who failed a year ago to delete state funds for university support of the radical campus newspaper, said he was not attempting to curb free speech or freedom of the press.

Blasts Student Paper

"My amendment is only aimed at the state's share of what I feel is this obnoxious newspaper," Swallow said. "They (the administration) promised to clean it up, and they didn't. Each edition is thoroughly laced with four-letter words."

The House also voted 74-18 for another Swallow amendment that would forbid any university to set enrollment criteria based on race, national origin or religious preference.

That was understood to be an effort to curb a controversial decision by the University of Michigan to adopt a 10-per-cent Negro admission quota. The policy was announced by the university's board of regents earlier this year after a period of campus demonstrations led by black students.

Hassle Likely Over C5 Planes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House report sure to spark new controversy over the costly C5 giant transport supports the military's bid for 120 of the planes to provide airlift capability for "one and a half wars."

A House Armed Services Committee report says the Pentagon should complete the original purchase order of 120 planes or devise a plan to achieve the same airlift capability with 81 C5s and smaller, supplementary aircraft.

The report, drafted by a subcommittee after extensive closed-door hearings on military airlift needs for the next decade, was expected to be released today.

Gen. John Ryan, Air Force Chief of Staff, told the subcommittee the joint chiefs are still unanimously recommending 120 C 5s —six squadrons—even though they support Laird's cut to 81 for budgetary reasons.

Strategy plans for maximum U.S. war commitments—an all-out war in Europe or Asia and a half war in some other trouble spot at the same time—cannot be met with 81 Cts, Ryan testified. He said 120 would be adequate.

Michigan State faculty representative in athletics Dr. John Fuzak is the new chairman of the NCAA's Academic and Testing Requirements Committee.
